New Deal Acts For Billions in Lendable Cash

Wants $3,000,000,000 To be Available By June 1

MOVES CAUTIOUSLY
Treasury Sets $50,000,000 Weekly Limit At Present

Washington—(AP)—The administration geared down its credit inflation today, but adopted a program which will swell the lendable cash of the nation's banks to $3,000,000,000 by the end of May.

Although it is theoretically possible for the treasury to pour its entire $1,400,000,000 gold depository fund into the banks at once, Secretary Morgenthau decided that the initial trickle should be only $50,000,000 per week.

The disbursement will be made by redeeming half of the $100,000,000 worth of short-term treasury bills maturing each week for the next eight weeks, and by refunding the other half.

The caution with which the gold fund will be spent, officials indicated, was demonstrated by the fact that there should be any refunding at all at a time when the treasury has all the cash it needs.

Banks will receive the redemption money either as holders of the bills, for which they are the principal customers, or as deposits from other holders.

Board Sells Bonds
One explanation of the caution was indicated by a federal reserve board disclosure that it sold $108,000,000 worth of federal bonds last week to prevent the price of the securities from going too high.

The board attempts to monitor the government bond market to prevent undue fluctuations leading to undesirable speculation in a type of security which is the backbone of investments.

President Roosevelt's credit inflation program boosted government bond prices because it will increase the amount of idle money in the banks and consequently increase their incentive to purchase government bonds for investment. Thus, the faster the gold money is spent, the more erratic the government bond market might become.

Ample Bank Funds
Officials, however, indicate the banks to place much of their idle cash in loans to business, but admitted that the present total of such cash, or excess reserves, amounting to $2,730,000,000, is ample for immediate needs.

This figure was $730,000,000 larger than it was a week ago because the federal reserve board reduced by one-eighth the percentage of deposits which banks must hold as reserves. Excess reserves were believed ample even before the program, but officials hoped making large additional sums available might psychologically stimulate lending.

The gold fund was created by depositing with the federal reserve system currency issued against $1,400,000,000 worth of idle gold.

Suspect Arrested in Levine Extortion Plot

Chicago—(AP)—Federal agents announced today the arrest of Charles Edmund Lavendar, 33, on charges of attempting to extort $30,000 from Murray Levine, father of 12-year-old Peter Levine who has been missing from his New Rochelle, N. Y., home since Feb. 24.

D. L. Land, agent in charge of the Chicago office of the federal bureau of investigation, said Lavendar "undoubtedly" had no connection with the kidnapping of the boy.

He said Lavendar formerly lived in Berkeley, Calif., and was once in the marine corps.

Mechanic Denies Guilt On Murder Indictment

Minneapolis—(AP)—Kenneth Palmer, 23-year-old mechanic, pleaded innocent today to a first degree murder indictment returned by a county grand jury yesterday in connection with the death last Jan. 18 of Mrs. Goldie Rosen.

Trial was set for May 9 and Palmer was returned to jail when no provision was made for bond. The suspect was arrested ten days after Mrs. Rosen's 14-year-old daughter, beaten severely by the person who killed her mother, was first able to tell her story.

President Says Neutrality Act Has Met Needs

Major Purpose Is to Keep U. S. From Taking Sides in War

PEACE CHIEF AIM

Satisfactorily Applied as Far as Possible, Roosevelt States

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt defined one of the prime purposes of the neutrality act today as being to prevent this country from penalizing one warring nation and so favoring another. He declared the law had been satisfactorily applied insofar as possible.

Discussion of neutrality came up at Mr. Roosevelt's press conference in connection with talk of his luncheon with Senator Borah (R-Idaho) yesterday, indicating that it had been one of the subject's discussed.

The senator and the president said, agreed on substantially everything they talked about, including the question of monopolies. Replying to questions, Mr. Roosevelt said the present law had two objectives:

1-To prevent the United States becoming involved in a foreign war.

2-To prevent this country giving aid to one side as against the other when a foreign war takes place.

This meant, he said, the country should not penalize one side against the other. He declined to amplify his remarks much beyond that.

Neutrality, the president continued, had been satisfactorily applied insofar as that was possible under present law.

The question he answered in making that remark referred specifically to the situations in Spain and China.

Asked whether he could embargo arms shipments to Italy and Germany under the law Mr. Roosevelt said he could not adding that neither could arms shipments to the French, or British, be embargoed.

Meanwhile it was disclosed that members of the House naval and military committees will make a thorough checkup this summer on the nation's defenses from Maine to Hawaii and from the Panama canal to Alaska.

'Bugs' Moran and 5 Others Nabbed

Questioned in Plot to Pass Counterfeit Travelers' Checks

Chicago—(AP)—George "Bugs" Moran, prohibition era gangster chief, and four other persons were held here today by police investigating a nationwide plot to pass counterfeit travelers' checks.

Three Chicago men accused of being members of a counterfeit ring were arrested at Pittsburgh last night.

Police of the state's attorney office who made the arrests here expressed the opinion as much as $1,000,000 in counterfeit American Express company checks had been printed for distribution in principal cities of the nation.

Moran, seven of whose henchmen were machine-gunned to death in the St. Valentine's day massacre, was held at the detective bureau during the night. He and the others denied being involved in a counterfeit ring.

Assistant State's Attorney Robert Wright announced those seized here included Frank J. Parker, airplane pilot, known as the "flying bootlegger" during prohibition days, Walter Nolan, an employee of a coin vending machine company, Marie Ribble, Loren Gant, and a woman whose name was not divulged.

Those arrested at Pittsburgh gave their names as Frank Quigley, 34, D. J. Driscoll, 45, and Dan Keller, 45. Detective Louis Foster of the Pittsburgh police said they had cleverly forged checks totaling $21,800 on the express company.

Lieutenant Thomas Kelly, chief investigator for the state's attorney's office here, said Parker had $2,000 in checks in his possession when he was seized in a La Salle street office.

Slayer of Policeman Given Life Sentence

La Crosse—(AP)—Floyd R. Wagener, 34-year-old Carrollton, Ill., salesman, was found guilty of first degree murder last night in the slaying of Policeman Joseph Donnellinger. He was sentenced to a life term in the state prison at Wau-pun.

Judge Robert S. Cowie pronounced sentence after a circuit court jury, deliberating nearly two and a half hours, announced its verdict.

Donnellinger was wounded fatally last Dec. 5 in a gun battle near the Wisconsin-Minnesota boundary bridge. Wagener was shot in the arm.

The defense contended Wagener had no intention of killing the policeman when he was halted after kidnapping Officer Granville Smith. Smith testified Wagener drew a gun after he stopped the man in connection with a traffic violation.

District Attorney William H. Stevenson charged that Wagener, after wounding Donnellinger, shot him again as he lay on the ground.

Roosevelt Will Send 2 Messages In Coming Week

Washington—(AP)—President Roosevelt said today he would send his message to congress on revising the anti-trust laws before next Friday.

On that date, he plans to leave the capital for a short cruise off Charleston, S. C.

The president said his monopoly message, would be the second of two communications he will send congress next week.

He said he expected his message regarding reciprocal federal-state taxation of salaries of public officials and of future issues of state and federal bonds would be dispatched to congress Monday.

Japs Withdrawing Garrisons From Hopoh Province

Sacrifice Much Area to Throw More Troops Into Central China

Shanghai—(AP)—Japan is sacrificing much of the Hopoh province area she won early in the war to throw more troops into the central China front.

The greatest concentration of Chinese forces since fighting started July 7, 1937, and continuing guerrilla raids against Japanese outposts have created for the Japanese a critical situation.

The fighting is centered in south-eastern Shantung, and along the Peiping-Hankow and Peiping-Sun-yuan railways.

Forced to muster every available man since the sharp defeat at Taiherchwang, first major loss in modern Japanese military history, the high command was said today to be withdrawing garrisons from Hopoh, between the two railways.

Set Up Soviet State
Chinese Reds already have set up a soviet state in the area, with an army of several hundred thousand troops, and it now seems likely all of central Hopoh soon may be under their domination. (Japanese still retain firm control of Peiping and Tientsin, major cities they won shortly after the conflict started.)

During the month since the insurgent attack developed in Catalonia, General Franco's troops have penetrated an average of only 18 miles within the province—about one-seventh of its breadth.

At that time there was talk of even a five-billion dollar, long range relief and public works program. It got nowhere against the mood of congress to start cutting down. A counter drive in the senate led by Senator Byrnes of South Carolina to cut the billion-and-a-half relief budget to a billion was stemmed with difficulty by administration leaders.

Seek Major Issue?
Observers are substantially agreed that the indicated move by the LaFollettes and their Progressive following in the house will have little more effect now than did their 1937 drive. For that reason Governor LaFollette's attack was regarded in political circles as possibly intended to develop a major issue on which a Progressive campaign could be built for 1940.

It raises the question of "coalition" for that presidential election year in a different light. Up to this time, under sponsorship of Senator Vandenberg of Michigan mostly, coalition talk has been concerned with a direct vote possibilities of a Republican-New Deal Democratic coalition but with little to indicate that Republican leadership has any thought of changing the party label or offering a presidential nomination to anybody but a dyed-in-the-wool Republican.

The break indicated between the LaFollette camp and President Roosevelt may be in the judgment of some observers, be an entering wedge for a counter Liberal-Progressive-Democratic coalition which could confuse the 1940 presidential race. It might be the start of a drive to run one of the LaFollettes for the presidency.

Charges Sen. Guffey Coercing WPA Workers

Philadelphia—(AP)—John B. Kelly, chairman of the Democratic city committee, wired President Roosevelt today he has "undeniable evidence" Senator Joseph P. Guffey is coercing WPA workers for political purposes.

Kelly asked that the federal bureau of investigation make an inquiry.

Asserting that the "coercion" is through Guffey's "publicity director," Edward N. Jones, former Pennsylvania WPA administrator, Kelly's telegram said:

"These (WPA) workers are told that if they do not support the John L. Lewis ticket they would be dismissed."

Milwaukee Group Wants LaFollette to Resign

Milwaukee—(AP)—Governor LaFollette was assailed today by the citizens' pension and recovery plan group, which through its secretary, Miss Paula Endres, requested the state's chief executive's resignation in a telegram.

The telegram charged the governor with having "betrayed the old people of Wisconsin" by having failed to support the citizens' pension and recovery plan program for old age pensions.

Father of Quintuplets Seeks Probe of Way Guardians are Handling Fortune

Ottawa—(Canadian Press)—Olivia Dionne, the Callander farmer-father of the quintuplets, is trying to get a judicial investigation of the way their lives and finances are being managed by their guardians.

An Ottawa lawyer, Henri St. Jacques, announced last night he had retained Dionne and had sent the request for a judicial investigation to Attorney General Conant of Ontario.

This presents the possibility of the amazing story of the quintuplets' birth, their fight for life, and their story book accumulation of a fortune of $750,000 made in movies and advertising would be told for the first time in a law court.

Fascist War Fleet Sinks Fishing Boats

Halt Efforts of Loyalists to Join Forces of General Miaja

DRIVE IS CHECKED

Insurgents Apparently Stopped in Eastern Spanish District

Itendaye, France, at the Spanish Border—(AP)—The insurgent war fleet, led by the heavy cruiser Canarias, today captured or sank a score of fishing boats in which government militiamen were attempting to get from Catalonia to the coast further south to join the forces of General Jose Miaja.

Insurgent dispatches said the smallest of the government ships hugging the coast were taken by fishing boats the insurgents had armed, while the Canarias and other large units of the fleet captured a number of small steam craft.

Most of the fugitives made their dash down the coast at night, but the insurgent navy spotted them with the giant searchlights.

Halt Drive in East
This naval incident occurred as the government's numerical superiority in land forces, almost two to one, apparently had halted the insurgent drive in eastern Spain.

The latest communique issued by the insurgent general headquarters, which for days has detailed a long list of captured towns, spoke merely in general terms of a "continued advance" down the coastal road towards Castellon de la Plana.

The terse communique, however, placed the insurgent southern columns still in the vicinity of Alcala de Chivert, which was reported captured 36 hours before.

A similar impasse seems to have been reached all the way to the Pyrenees frontier, where for the last two days the insurgents have been taking "complete possession" of the Arnan valley.

Reports Counter-Attacks
Along the 100 miles of the 190-mile front—from Gandesa north to Tortosa—the militiamen have held firmly for more than a week. At strategic Tremp and Balaguer the government reported counter-attacks had reduced insurgent bridgeheads.

During the month since the insurgent attack developed in Catalonia, General Franco's troops have penetrated an average of only 18 miles within the province—about one-seventh of its breadth.

Find No Trace of Caroline Funds

Banking Commission Deputy Searching for Missing $7,000

Madison—(AP)—J. C. Stadler, special deputy of the state banking commission, reported to the department today that no trace has been found of $7,000 that disappeared from the Caroline State bank shortly before the death of Cashier W. A. Herzfeldt.

Stadler arrived in the Shawano county village late yesterday. The department said Stadler was instructed to work with local authorities.

Another department employee, M. C. Bender, who was examining the books when Herzfeldt disappeared, reported the missing money was taken from the vault after Tuesday morning. He reported an additional shortage of $2,300.

Herzfeldt's body was found near Caroline yesterday. Deputy Coroner Edward Krenger said he shot himself in the head.

Thinks Agreement May Be Reached on Tax Bill

Washington—(AP)—Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.), a member of the joint committee seeking to reconcile differences between the house and senate revenue bills, said today he thought an agreement might be reached soon.

Vandenberg declined to discuss details of any possible compromise, but told reporters "it looks like we may reach an agreement soon."

The joint committee continued working on the two bills amid signs of congressional concern over delay in reaching an accord.

"I think the conference should reach some agreement as soon as possible," commented Senator Hatch (D-N.M.), a member of the senate unemployment committee. That committee has declared adoption of the senate "tax provisions" would be "exceedingly helpful" in relieving unemployment.

Affirm Ruling Denying Claim of Mrs. Ringling

New York—(AP)—The appellate division today affirmed a decision denying Mrs. Emily Ringling, widow of John Ringling, circus owner, a dower right in the Ringling museum at Sarasota, Fla.

The decision, unanimous and without opinion, upheld State Supreme Court Justice Peter Schmuck, who decided the case in June, 1935.

Phil to Sound Out Chances for Third Party in Midwest

Breach Widens Between Progressives and New Deal

CAPITAL IS PUZZLED

Politicians Try to Determine Meaning Of Attack

Washington—(AP)—The attack by Governor Philip LaFollette of Wisconsin on President Roosevelt's economic program as "tinkering and patching" tended to widen the breach between the White House and Wisconsin Progressives who formerly were the president's allies in congress; but it left political observers puzzled as to its true meaning.

It was regarded as adding significance to the balance-of-power role played against the White House by a handful of Wisconsin Progressives in the house fight over the government reorganization bill. Their surprise vote for recommitment furnished the margin needed to administer a rebuff to Roosevelt leadership.

Whether that action and Governor LaFollette's sharply worded criticism, promptly backed up by his senator brother, is merely a new Progressive effort to reshape the New Deal relief and public works program, or has a deeper political significance, remains to be disclosed. There have been intimations, however, that the Wisconsin group in congress intended its action on the reorganization bill to be interpreted at the White House as a declaration of independence. Some observers believed it might foreshadow an independent Progressive presidential ticket in 1940.

Sought Larger Fund
Senator LaFollette and the Wisconsin Progressives in the house, backed by a "liberal Democrat" bloc, sought in 1937 to double the billion-and-a-half dollar relief appropriation for the fiscal year. They then contended, as Governor LaFollette now recalls, that the Roosevelt administration was premature in assuming that the "war on the depression had been won and we were out of the woods" and that the time was ripe for paring down spending.

At that time there was talk of even a five-billion dollar, long range relief and public works program. It got nowhere against the mood of congress to start cutting down. A counter drive in the senate led by Senator Byrnes of South Carolina to cut the billion-and-a-half relief budget to a billion was stemmed with difficulty by administration leaders.

Widow of Correspondent Is Given Life Pension

New York—(AP)—The board of directors of the Associated Press today presented a life annuity for herself and her 5-year-old son to Helen Nolan Neil, widow of War Correspondent Edward J. Neil, Jr., who died of wounds suffered last New Year's eve while covering the insurgent offensive in Spain.

In making the presentation, Kent Cooper, general manager of the Associated Press, told Mrs. Neil that she would always have "the deepest sympathy and affection of Associated Press members."

Father Sentenced To State Prison For Beating Son

Madison—(AP)—Judge Roy Proctor sternly rebuked Rowley Conant in superior court today for an assault on his 7-year-old son, Rowley, Jr., and sentenced the 39-year-old town of Burke butcher to a term of one to five years in state prison at Waupun.

"It's a brutal thing for a father to beat his young son, and the son never will forget it," said Judge Proctor, ignoring pleas of Conant and his wife for leniency.

"Drinking has been the cause of this and I would give my heart and soul if it had not happened," Conant said.

Conant pleaded guilty several days ago, admitting he beat the boy because he did not respond quickly enough to a command to catch seven dogs.

Undersheriff Joseph Shaughnessy arrested Conant after Mrs. Conant brought the child to a hospital for treatment.

PENNY JUSTICE

Justice of the Peace Louis L. Hicks (above) looked up from the scratch pad in his St. Louis office and addressed George Jamerson: "Richard Whitney got five years for stealing about $225,000. That would be about $45,000 a year, $120 a day and $5 an hour. You stole $2. That would be 24 minutes and that is your sentence."

Coogan's Mother Warned Betty Not To Marry Jackie

Wife Says She Was Told He Was Pauper; Wallace Beery Offers Aid

Los Angeles—(AP)—Betty Grable, $500-a-week film dancer, told today of ignoring a warning by her mother-in-law that she was marrying a "pauper," if she married Jackie Coogan.

As Betty described what she said were Mrs. Lillian Coogan Bernstein's efforts to break off her son's two-year engagement, Wallace Beery, a friend of Jackie's kid days in the movies, rallied to his support in his legal fight for a share of his screen fortune.

A hearing was scheduled in court today on the petition by Mrs. Bernstein and Jackie's stepfather, Arthur L. Bernstein, to dismiss the receivership declared on the Coogan estate when the 23-year-old former star filed a $4,000,000 accounting suit against the couple last week.

Jackie's Contention
Jackie maintained, and Mrs. Bernstein denied, that his father, Jack Coogan, Sr., had intended to give him his accumulated film earnings when he came of age. The older Coogan was killed in an automobile accident in 1935, shortly before Jackie's twenty-first birthday.

To "The Kid's" cause, Beery, a veteran star, added his word to Turn to page 2 col. 2

Delays Announcement Of His Course Until Next Week

SPEAKS TONIGHT

Friends Expecting Him To Seek Re-election As Governor

A report of Governor LaFollette's radio address last night is published on page 2.

Madison—(AP)—Sources close to Governor Philip F. LaFollette said today the governor has decided upon his political course, that a definite announcement would be delayed until next week, and that the Wisconsin chief executive would sound out sentiment for possible third party action in the middle west.

The governor is scheduled to deliver tonight the final speech in a series of four radio addresses which were highlighted by a criticism of the Roosevelt administration in its handling of economic problems.

The governor charged in one speech last Wednesday night that the policy of the national administration has been one of "tinkering and patching."

That chief executive previously indicated he would disclose his political plans today, but informed sources said his final announcement over the air would postpone a statement of his objectives until sometime next week, when definite action will be forthcoming.

Many Conferences
Within the last three months Governor LaFollette has held private conferences with members of his own Progressive party in Wisconsin and third party advocates of other middle west states. Some eastern states, including New York also have been represented at the conferences.

LaFollette has the alternatives of announcing his candidacy for re-election as governor, entering the race for the United States senate seat held by F. Ryan Duffy, Fond du Lac Democrat, or retiring to private life.

Friends in Wisconsin believe the governor will run again for the chief state office.

Washington and the middle west have speculated whether LaFollette's radio speeches might be the first move in pointing him toward the White House as presidential candidate of a new party in 1940. The governor has remained silent on this question, reserving his comment to the statement that tonight's announcement will be "interesting."

Interest in the reported third party movement has been heightened by two factors—the radio speeches rapping the administration, and a series of closed door conferences with political leaders.

For more than two months the governor has been conferring with politicians, first from his own state, and later from other sections. A meeting behind closed doors last Saturday was attended by 60 persons, including a number from Illinois and Iowa.

The governor opened his criticism of the Roosevelt recovery program Tuesday night with the declaration that it is "tinkering and patching," and stressed what he called the need for a "sound, comprehensive, carefully worked out" program.

Productive Work Must be Assured All Able-Bodied Citizens. Phil Declares

Says Nation Can't Continue Millions of Unproductive Jobs

Madison—(U)—Governor Philip F. LaFollette said in a radio address Thursday night that all able-bodied men and women should be put to work at productive enterprises in order to give again to America a healthy, vital, normal life.

"To continue to pay great numbers of able-bodied men and women to do nothing productive over longer and longer periods of time violates every principle upon which the progress of the human race has been founded," he said.

The 40-year-old chief executive, who has been scanning the national scene while formulating plans for his own future, reached the conclusion in the third of a series of four addresses that "it is so rich that it can go on indefinitely paying millions of men and women not to produce."

"By the same token," he added, "our nation at this time is so poor that it cannot afford to give able-bodied men and women a real opportunity to support themselves and by their work to add to the total wealth of the country."

Basic Problem
The central underlying problem we face in America is not complicated. Every citizen, every farmer, every housewife, and even children, know that work plus materials equals wealth. Able-bodied men and women in America must be given a real opportunity to work—not at unproductive tasks—but on the farm, in the office, the shop, the factory, the school, in transportation.

Governor LaFollette praised national programs of old-age assistance and expansion and betterment of educational facilities for youth, but declared they represent nothing fundamentally new.

He declared it would not be easy to put simple, homely remedies into application on a general economic recovery program because "over a long period of years we have developed interests whose toes may have to be stepped on." Such interests, he added, include relief agencies, dispensers of relief supplies and services, and politicians.

Need Common Action
"As individuals we are caught in a trap and there is little or nothing that we can do," the governor said. "Here, it would seem, is a great common problem upon which we must have common action. That action can come only through organization."

"So we stand face to face with this difficult question: How can we secure organized action which will again lead America in the right direction—toward the only healthy prosperity that ever has been or ever will be, a prosperity founded on the production of real wealth? We are coming to the conviction in this country that any such action will have to be public action."

He asked the "average men and women of his audience to advise him on their views, declaring "long experience has shown that broad questions of fundamental policy, the judgment of average men and women is likely to be more sound than that of leaders and experts."

Similar Results
Governor LaFollette said recovery programs of both President Hoover and President Roosevelt were motivated by high purposes, but "since the diagnosis and the treatment have been essentially the same, we have got pretty much the same results."

He took issue with the "underlying" fundamental assumption of both administrations that "to spend or loan public money would enable our people and our resources to mark time until prosperity returned."

"Now that we have suffered another relapse it is almost certain that we will receive a dose of the same medicine we have been taking," he said. "It will again produce a relapse in business, but a pickup produced by this kind of medicine is quite likely to be followed by another and more serious relapse."

Proposals to Aid Business Lying in Pigeonholes, Lawrence Says

Washington—(U)—"Pump-priming" is to be adopted as a permanent policy of the government, it may be assumed that its purpose is temporary and only to stimulate the operations of private business. During the last "pump-priming" program, no steps were taken to bring about private spending as a substitute when government spending tapered off.

Are such plans being made now? Can any assurances be given that, when the present $4,500,000,000 of "pump-priming" is finished, private business will be able to take up the slack? On the answer to this question depends the whole experiment, and, for the next two years at least, President Roosevelt has the power to defeat his own experiment again just as he unquestionably did in the last two years.

Private business insists that there must be certain changes in government policy before the field of private investment will be able to function effectively again and absorb the unemployed. Mr. Roosevelt either disagrees with the desires of the business world or thinks these requests are of no consequence. What is it that business considers essential to a sound economic position and one particularly that could make public "pump-priming" eventually successful in transferring the spending to the private investment field? Here are the fundamentals, restated now because the same old cry for alternatives to the Roosevelt policy is being raised again when there has been no attention paid to the long list of alternative policies submitted heretofore to congress and the White House from time to time.

Modification Security Tax
1. Modification of the Social Security Tax so that the billion dollar a year tax will not have to be added to prices and so that the workers' purchasing power can be increased. A pay-as-you-go plan that a government can find is a further huge expenditure program to be applied on top of expenditures already too great, then we shall go bankrupt.

"If the government spends money, it must collect revenues to match the expenditures."

Still Can Pay Debts
"It is not yet too late to pull up and save ourselves and pay our public debt of the United States if we are honest and economical. If we will have to stop our spendthrift course."

The nation's hope, he said, "lies in congress, backed by an articulate citizenry, to continue to take action and assume leadership."

"Congress must decide if we are to take the hard road, or if we shall take the easy and finally into this intoxicating habit of inflation. If we are honest and economical, if we will have to stop our spendthrift course."

All responsibility, Landon said, must not be placed upon congress, and the citizenry must not be "indifferent."

"It has already been proven conclusively that when the people want something, and want it badly enough, they can get the congress to follow their directions."

Up to People
"If those who are against these inflationary measures haven't the courage to say so openly, they can't blame their representatives in congress for listening to the clamor for more reckless spending."

President Roosevelt "is gambling," he said, "that he can raise the national income by a policy of government spending."

"But this program is the opposite pledged by his secretary of treasury only five months ago. With several ways to check the depression, the president has chosen the one that the record of his administration shows will not work."

Recovery from an unsound fiscal policy can not be accomplished in the short "breathing spells" which the administration threatens by "bowed business," Landon said.

"If we are to work our way back to a sound basis, it would mean the government must levy an enormous increase of taxes to bring the budget into balance."

Such a course, Landon said, would require "courage."

Claim Resettlement Plan Won't Solve State Problem

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau Madison—A 2-year study by University of Wisconsin sociologists, published today, suggests that the federal government's ambitious resettlement project in the central Wisconsin purchase area will not solve the troublesome submarginal settler problem in that section.

The published report of George W. Hill, Walter Slocum and Ruth O. Hill of the department of rural sociology of the college of agriculture comes hard on the heels of an announcement from Washington that the federal government has authorized further land purchases in various central and northern counties for better land use projects.

The sociologists' report, after two years of field study of the section in central Wisconsin long known as Wisconsin's "problem area" questions the thesis that "the welfare of all families can be enhanced by resettlement alone."

The reason, the social scientists reported, is that many of the poor families in the resettlement project section cannot be fitted into the rigid qualifications set up by the resettlement administration.

Central Sand Plain
The area from which the federal government is evacuating residents includes large portions of Juneau and Jackson counties, one township in Monroe county, and two townships in Wood county, all of which are located in the central sand plain of the state.

The resettlement area lies in counties contiguous to the purchase area, and includes parts of Wood, Clark, Marathon and western Jackson counties. It is considered to have a more stable type of agriculture than the purchase area and to be able to provide a better living for its settlers.

Settlers are being moved from the first section, which is characterized by meager incomes, low standard of living, delinquent taxes, isolated schools, high relief costs, and poor roads, according to a recent report.

Three Types
Three types of resettlement projects have been proposed to take care of residents in the purchase area: the full time commercial farm, the part time subsistence farm, and the retirement homesteads, which would care for aged people unable to provide for themselves, permanent relief clients, and similar settlers in village or town homes to be provided by the resettlement administration and administered by the county board or relief administration.

However, the scientists found that in a typical part of the purchase area only 40 per cent of the residents could meet the requirements for full time farms, only 18 per cent would be eligible for the subsistence farms or the retirement homesteads, while 42 per cent would not benefit from the resettlement program at all, so that the best farmers would be moved into neighboring areas where they would be about on the same level, while those most needing rehabilitation will be left as they were.

County Receives Check Of $9,485 From State
Miss Marie Ziegenhagen, Outagamie county treasurer, yesterday received a check for $9,485.28 from Solomon Levitan, state treasurer, at Madison. The sum includes $8,959.31 for snow removal work, $35.00 for drift prevention work and $490.97 for removal and prevention work during January.

Revise Relief System
6. Complete overhauling of the present wasteful and unmoral system of distributing relief funds and substitution thereof of a federal commission with representatives of both political parties, or else outstanding citizens unrelated to politics, but a commission responsible to congress alone. This would eliminate the present system of using relief funds to get votes or to award projects to the districts of congressmen and senators who are favorable to administration policies. Progress toward this objective? None. This is because an awakened public opinion has not aroused congress to the fact that it has abdicated its legislative function in favor of 1-man government.

There are many other proposals now lying in the pigeonholes of the department of commerce and other departments of the government which would aid business to get on its feet and thus make the new "pump-priming" of some avail as a starter toward a transition from the use of public funds to the investment of private funds. Unfortunately, there are no signs as yet that any transition stage is being planned. None was planned before, hence, another 18 months or 2 years, the nation may find the second "pump-priming" has failed and more borrowing will be advocated as a means of taking up the "slack" which private business allegedly has not been able to take up. The alternative is insistence now on the making of plans for a transition policy so that there will not be another "recession" or "depression" but a real recovery.

Two Persons Hurt As Autos Collide On Old Route 41

Kimberly Girl and Little Chute Man Suffer
Cuts and Bruises

Two persons were injured when cars driven by Francis McGill, 22, 1206 W. Lorain street, and Wilfred Baumgart, Little Chute, collided on old Highway 41 at Kimberly about 1:30 this morning. Miss Dorothy Van Brady, 18, Kimberly, an occupant of the McGill machine was cut about the face, head and knee, and Bernard Van Berkel, about 22, Little Chute, a passenger in the Baumgart car, was cut about the head and shaken up.

McGill was traveling west on the highway and turned to cross the Kimberly bridge and Baumgart was going east on the highway when the cars collided, according to County Motorcycle Officer Jack Frenz, who investigated. The McGill machine careened off the road and traveled about 110 feet in the meantime rolling over and landing upright. Miss Van Brady was thrown about 20 feet from the machine by the impact. Frenz said.

The gasoline tank on the machine was punctured and both Miss Brady and McGill were covered with gasoline. A tragedy may have occurred when some person dropped a lighted match in a puddle of gasoline from the car, Frenz said, but immediate precautions were taken to keep the gasoline-drenched persons out of danger. Frenz said.

Miss Van Brady was taken to St. Elizabeth hospital by Robert Schinke, route 1, Appleton.

Many Business Men Applying for RFC Loans Under Roosevelt Plan

Washington—(AP)—Officials of the securities commission and the Reconstruction Finance corporation reported today that business men were responding in increasing numbers to administration lending proposals.

A spokesman said the RFC was "putting the steam on" to take care of loan applications pouring into its 32 regional offices, chiefly from small business men wanting some of the agency's $1,500,000,000 of lendable funds.

From an SEC official came word that the commission has been "swamped" with inquiries about its simplified registration procedure. Undertaken at the request of President Roosevelt as part of his economic program, this simplification was designed to make it easier and faster for business interests to register small issues.

Seek More Details
SEC regional offices in Seattle, Denver, Chicago, San Francisco and New York, it was learned, have been so pressed by business men for information on the new procedure that they have telephoned headquarters for more details.

The RFC lacked definite figures on increases in loan applications, because the latest requests are still pending in regional offices, but activity was described as especially heavy in New York. The small Business Men's association set up headquarters in a hotel there and assisted in filling out applications. The treasury advanced its program to expand credit resources by deciding to begin moving its $1,400,000,000 gold credit to the nation's banks at the rate of $50,000,000 a week.

Fair and continued cool is expected in this section tonight, followed by warmer Saturday.

It Is Said--

That a lot of excitement was caused by two neighborhoods at Kaukauna this week when an undertaker misunderstood the name of a person reported dead. The undertaker called at two homes with similar names, and finding that no one had died at either, had to return to his establishment and wait for a second call. In the meantime the neighborhoods buzzed.

Whittaker Named Committee Head For Puppy Show

Northeastern Kennel Club
Members to Sponsor
Dog Show in June

Sanctioned puppy matches, open to dog fanciers in the Fox River valley, will be held in June, it was decided at a meeting of the Northeastern Wisconsin Kennel club last night at the Valley Inn, Neenah.

Stanley Whittaker, Oshkosh dog breeder, was named chairman of a committee to complete plans, name a day and place for the matches. Dogs from two months to one year old will be eligible.

Frank Fadner, Neenah photographer, talked on "Breeds and Bloodlines" and discussed pedigrees and the value of line breeding. His talk was illustrated with 30 life-size plaques of various dog breeds. Fadner and Earl Williams are working on a complete collection and expect to have represented 107 breeds of dogs. Lawrence Schoenrock, Neenah, painted the dogs which have been completed.

The next meeting of the club will be held at Fond du Lac May 26. The Fond du Lac chapter has arranged to have several prominent breeders and judges from Milwaukee on its program.

Dr. John E. Rogers, Oshkosh, president of the club, presided at last night's meeting. In charge of the program were Otis Hayes, Earl Williams and Norman Nye, all of Neenah.

Represented at the meeting were the cities of Fond du Lac, Appleton, Green Bay, Manitowish, Neenah, Menasha, Shawano, Amherst, Kohler, Sheboygan and Plymouth. About 200 persons attended.

Appleton dog fanciers who attended the meeting include: Dr. and Mrs. L. H. Dillon, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Krull, Mrs. John Wennemann, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brautigam and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Weickert.

Kaw Track Squad to Show In First Meet Saturday

Kaukauna — Whether or not the five school records broken in intersquad competition this week show that Coach Paul E. Little has a track team to be reckoned with this year will be shown tomorrow afternoon when Kimberly and Chilton come here for a triangular meet. The strength of the visitors is as much in doubt as that of the Kaws and a wide open meet is forecast.

The Kaws probably will take more than their share of first places but will have trouble in coping their proportion of the seconds and thirds, and stand to pile up most of their points in the track events.

Lee Lambie should have little difficulty in the 440 yard run and it will be very much a surprise if Bill Peterson is defeated in the high hurdles. Lambie and Peterson between them should do well for the Kaws in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Vanderberg In Mile

Bob Cooper cannot be counted out of the half mile, and Elmer Vanderberg, who broke the school record in the mile Tuesday, will be a favorite in that event.

Other probably Kaukauna entries in various events are as follows: Meitner, 100 and 440; Pendergast, 220, high jump; L. Cooper, half mile; McDermid, Peters, mile; Meyer, Schubring, Giordana, low hurdles; Derus, Siebers, high hurdles; Derus, Siebers, Swedberg, pole vault; Niesen, Alger, Giordana, shotput.

Peterson, Alger, Pendergast, broad jump and high jump, and Schubring, R. Cooper and Giordana in the discuss.

Kaukauna's relay team will be favored over the half mile course, with Peterson, Lambie and Meitner probably starters and the fourth man yet in doubt.

The second meet of the season for the Kaws will be run of here next Wednesday afternoon against West DePere.

2 Church Groups Will Sponsor Bake Sales

Schultz Circus Will Present 17 Acts at Kaukauna

Lions Club Will Sponsor Performances at High School Gym

Kaukauna — Seventeen acts will be included in the Schultz indoor circus of Manitowoc which will appear here under the sponsorship of the Kaukauna Lions club on Saturday and Sunday, April 30 and May 1, at the high school gymnasium, with 40 persons taking part. The circus will be directed in its first presentation of the season by William Schultz, former Ringling Brothers acrobatic clown.

Among the highlights of the circus are Donald Underberg and Wesley Boswell, who perform from the top of four tables piled on each other.

Dorothy Drill appears in the revolving trapeze act. Hanging by her arms from a high trapeze, she does a series of back flips, gradually gaining speed until her body resembles a rapidly rotating wagon wheel.

Trapeze Act

The mid-air quintuple trapeze act, billed as the only one of its kind in the country, is a feature of the circus. Five actors perform hook holds, breakfalls and upside down formations from one bar with the aid of three attached smaller bars.

The teeter board acrobats are seen in only the country's largest circuses. The seven performers do three high double somersaults.

Two girls hang by the napes of their necks, performing gyrations with colored streamers as they revolve close to the ceiling.

DEAFNESS MADE ME A HERMIT — but no more

"My deafness made me give up practically everything I enjoyed — the friendly Saturday night card game with the boys, my golf, movies — I hated to go out, avoided people and became practically a hermit before I snapped out of it."

All this is past history for this man and for thousands of others whose experience has been similar.

Today it's old-fashioned and unnecessary to be handicapped by impaired hearing. The new Sonotone Audicle, individually fitted to your case, brings you clear, strain-free, close-to-normal hearing, and all the freedom that goes with it. And if you'd wear glasses, you'll willingly wear the Audicle.

Satisfy yourself on this score by coming in for an individual fitting and first-hand "hearing acquaintance" with this radically new development. There's no charge or obligation. At our office — or in your home, if you'd prefer.

Mrs. & Mrs. E. C. Wilson will be at HOTEL APPLETON APPLETON Monday, April 24th and at VALLEY INN — NEENAH Wednesday, April 27th HOURS: 3 to 8 P. M.

THE WILL TO WAR

Collier's is printing a story by Jim Marshall, its far Eastern correspondent who was seriously injured during the attack upon the Panay, to the effect that Japan deliberately and in cold blood planned the attack for the purpose of injuring white prestige in Asia and to give a living demonstration to the Orientals that "America is afraid to fight Japan." The article, and the claims, are worthy of attention as a particularly difficult sort of talk, sometimes propaganda, that a people must meet and subdue in order to avoid war, if they want to avoid war.

Claims that attacks are for certain particular purposes, and especially to humiliate a great nation, are not ordinarily the subject of proof or demonstration. Yet, strange to say, they create a bitterness and a will to fight that very often makes men see red which prevents them from reasoning coolly. It is an adult form of the boy who walked among his fellows with a chip on his shoulder and a sneer on his face. He provoked a great many hand to hand encounters. No doubt the conviction by grown-ups that their courage is doubted or that another people have deliberately sought to belittle them has been an inducing cause of a great many wars. A little reflection will ordinarily show how silly the whole procedure is.

Japan, for instance, knew no more about the Panay incident until after it was over than did America. If the destruction of the vessel were a deliberate act the deliberation must have been limited to a very few people. Certainly the Japanese parliament, presumably representing the Japanese people, knew nothing about it.

So, if the attack were intentional, that intention may have been but the vicious act of a few warped or twisted minds.

Would we go to war with Japan because assured that among the nearly 90 million Japanese there were some who would be willing to go any lengths to humiliate us? That is about the proposition to which the matter boils down.

In handling this question of peace or war let us at least be intelligent enough not to take out the sword until satisfied that we want to use it, and likewise as well satisfied that those against whom we raise it are determined that the clash must come.

A THOUGHT NOT TO BE THOUGHT

Italo Balbo, governor general of Libya, was mentioned as a likely successor to Mussolini as dictator of Italy in a recent edition of an American periodical. This month Balbo replied to the somewhat critical characterization with this interesting statement:

"As for succeeding Mussolini, I can assure you that this concerns a problem which no right-minded Italian envisages today."

"Mussolini, thank God, enjoys excellent health; possesses an exceptional physique, and can very well live another 50 years—as I wish him with all my heart. In order to be worthy of succeeding Mussolini, it would be necessary to possess the genius, the power and the prestige—uncompared and incomparable, of the great Chief—a quality which I am certain I do not possess. The very thought of a succession to Il Duce causes the pulse to tremble and the veins to quiver, in every genuine Italian."

Unconsciously, General Balbo has put his finger on a glaring fault of all dictatorships, for though things may be well today what will happen when the dictator dies?

Dictators gloriously claim solutions to all the problems affecting human life, assert power over all beings, but the one problem they have not solved is proposed by Dea'h and the one being they have not intimidated is the Almighty.

They have taken as their faith the advice of an intriguing but hopelessly impractical ballad, "The Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam":

"Some sigh for the Glories of this World; and some
For the Prophet's Paradise to come;
Ah, take the Cash, and let the Promise go,
Nor heed the music of a distant Drum!"

"DO SOMETHING"

A man became ill with pneumonia. His physician was particular in prescribing for him rest and quiet.

But ailments do not always give way immediately to accepted treatment. The man continued ill. His friends became concerned. They didn't like the physician's treatment. They complained that he should "do something." The physician was displaced. A new medic, rather a talkative gentleman, came on the job.

His first words were, "I won't let you down, old man." He brought with him four male nurses. Some of them looked like prize fighters. They took the four corners of a blanket, piled the patient on it and began tossing him around.

The new doctor, known to history as the Razzle Dazzle Doctor, declared he just couldn't sit around and see a man suffer without doing something.

The treatment certainly awoke the patient. He became greatly agitated. The Razzle Dazzle Doctor smiled at the apparent recovery and said with extreme modesty, "Oh, that's nothing, I planned it that way."

But the patient had a relapse. His fever shot up. A chill shook him in its icy grasp. His pulse raced so fast it couldn't be counted.

The Razzle Dazzle Doctor sent out for his four nurses. "My motto," he said, "is do something, always do something. I never let a patient down."

The patient's eyelids fluttered. His lips moved. But by now he was so weak it was hard to catch his words. As the four stalwart nurses came in to "do something" he shuddered. And when they completed their task the death rattle could be heard in his throat.

As the Razzle Dazzle Doctor passed the undertaker on his way out he was heard to mutter, "I always do something."
"So do I," said the undertaker.

DEMONS AND DEMAGOGUES

The Georgia sod covers Tom Watson but this waspish demagogue lives in book form, and whether with the commendable purpose of delineating the fanatical development of a genuine demagogue matters not inasmuch as the tainted result is bound to become apparent anyway.

Watson started out in the days of the Populist fever about 1890. He saw himself ditched for the control of Georgia by the old line Democrats who even had recourse to the negro in order to accomplish their purpose.

Of course this was demagoguery upon their part but it taught Watson a lesson he never forgot, and in demagoguery that was something like General Forrest's motto that the way to accomplish anything "was to get there furthest with mostest men." From the date of that defeat Watson cast away all restraint and became the most demagogic of the demagogues.

As a result of his experience Watson became an extremist on the negro question, demanding the complete elimination of the negro from politics, supporting the important Klanlike sort of suppression, and in the end extolled lynch bees and poured kerosene on race riots.

Watson's experience in Georgia satisfied him that these demagogic appeals to race prejudice paid splendid dividends. Seemingly he discovered what Hitler later ascertained, that our human race is sadistic and gets a great thrill out of seeing cruelty inflicted upon others, however cowardly or unjustified the attack.

From his class war against the negro Watson gave his public a variety by vicious attacks upon Catholics and Semites. Since they were few in number around his bailiwick the dividend in votes was good. Watson showed pretty plainly that the spirit of the Spanish Inquisition is still in men's blood and that when you start demagoguery you must keep it up and extend it because it is a form of fanaticism and fanatics are only kept dancing and howling through a constant feeding of a hate stimulus.

Watson came into his own in 1913 when Leo Frank, a Jew, was accused of killing a non-Jewish girl. Here was a trough full of inviting food. Watson, the politician, abandoned everything to follow the hapless Jew. His strident voice was used to intimidate the jury. He drove from Georgia a governor who commuted a death penalty to life imprisonment. He finally incited a mob to break into the penitentiary farm where Frank was at work to lynch his victim.

The whole record of Watson in this particular was infamous. Throughout he was a mob leader, appealing to hatred for evidence, inciting people to villainy. But he gloried in it. The lynching of Frank was the proudest moment of his life.

Watson lived the life of a demagogue and died a demagogue. If there is anything that could be called principle in demagoguery he adhered to it. From small beginnings he kept upon what we might call the straight road of the demagogue. His weapons were hate and misstatement. But the book written concerning his life serves a purpose. It shows how dangerous a demagogue is. It proves better than words could otherwise establish that the 40-year public life of a demagogue is unadorned at its end except as it may be symbolized by a dangling corpse left on a tree by a mob.

Opinions Of Others

MERELY MORAL

Among the many remarkable opinions expressed by Gov. Earle in a speech before the University of Pennsylvania, none is more revealing than this: "From a moral point of view, it should give big business fair play, but that is only from a moral point of view. Actually, it isn't important to give big business fair play."—The New York Times.

ONE THING that has always interested me is the kind of dreams people have in self-defense when the alarm clock starts ringing in the morning. . . . nature supplies these dreams, you know, as a method of keeping you asleep, but nature usually doesn't seem as insistent as an alarm clock. . . . one of my pets is to dream that it's Sunday morning and that the alarm is ringing by mistake. . . . this is particularly good on Monday mornings. . . . later in the week, the anti-alarm-clock dreams are less pleasant but always so plausible while you're three-quarters under. . . . if any of you folks have some extra good alarm clock dreams, I would appreciate hearing about them. . . .

THE REASON WHY

Young Cyrus stood one autumn day Out in the sun reloading hay:
The load had slipped into the ditch —
And Cyrus thought, I'd better pitch
It back — and I must hurry too;
The village Doctor whom he knew,
Per chance just came along the way
And said: do not reload that hay
At noon in all the sizzling heat,
You better come with me and eat;
Get back here when the sun is gone.
But Cyrus would not give a darn:
You foolish boy! — The Doctor said:
In all this heat you may drop dead!
It's too hard work, that's why you see —
I want you to come home with me.
But Cyrus said: I just can't go!
Of course dear Doc, you do not know,
The reason why, I'm bound to stay.
You see, poor Dad's beneath the hay.

—Zilla Vollmer Tietgen.

In all fairness it must be stated that, while the gag-line of the verse above is not brand new, this is the first time I have seen it set in rhyme.

The matter of the lieutenant-governor of the state of Washington is probably a bit funny to us back east. You will recall that the I-g. Victor A. Meyers, called a special session of the legislature while the governor (Clarence D. Martin) was out of the state so that certain relief measures advocated by Meyers would have to be brought up. Right now there is some legal question as to whether the special session will be held, since Governor Martin flew back to halt the proceedings as soon as he heard about them.

Whatever happens, the whole thing simmers down to a general suspicion of the methods of some of the newer group of American politicians will try to use to acquire power.

On the occasion of his 49th birthday the other day, Adolf Hitler admitted that his career was just starting. Considering what might happen to any dictator in any country at any time, it will be a good idea if Adolf doesn't get too specific as to what his future career might be.

A Verse for Today

By Anne Campbell

SINCE BROTHER MADE THE TEAM

The family is not the same
Since Brother made the team.
Dad talks about his baseball game,
Lost in a happy dream.
The youngest lad is practicing
Upon a lot nearby.
And even Sister likes to swing
The bat and sail them high.

In other years, our mother spoke
Of baseball with faint scorn.
But the spring season is no joke,
When her adored first-born
Is playing college baseball. . . . She
Is such a constant fan.
She combs the sport page eagerly
For news of her top man!

The family is filled with pride.
The April days are bright.
And even Daddy cannot hide
His feeling of delight.
"It makes a fellow young again,"
He says, and the warm gleam
Of his lost youth is very plain.
Since Brother made the team.

STILL IT'S A MARVELOUS OPPORTUNITY TO KILL TWO BIRDS WITH FOUR BILLION DOLLARS

Personal Health Talks

BY WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.
Noted Physician and Author

EAT FISH

According to Hu-chison and Mottram (Food and the Principles of Dietetics, Wm. Wood and Co., 1933), the popular fancy that fish is "brain food" is grounded on the belief that fish is specially rich in phosphorus. The Swiss naturalist, Agassiz, who it seems, took a medical degree at Munich the year after he became a doctor of philosophy at Erlangen — perhaps they were careless and left medical degree lying about unwatched in those days (1830). Being the rightful owner of the degree of Doctor of Medicine, Agassiz probably wanted to make some use of it, so he delved a bit into the medical "science" of the day, learned that without phosphorus thought is impossible (this was the dictum of Buchner, but it has long since been laid away in the museum), learned also that fish contains phosphorus (as a matter of chemical analysis meat, beans, corn, peanuts, nuts, wheat, peas, oatmeal, eggs and cheese contain more phosphorus than fish does), and lightly jumped to the conclusion that fish is brain food. This authoritative pronouncement established the idea, and it thrived for years, until Mark Twain, no mean naturalist himself, applied it in practice, prescribing a couple of whales as a breakfast dish for a youth who sought hints on how to become an author.

The foods I specifically recommend to prevent or cure what ails many who consider themselves "nervous" contain much calcium and at least enough phosphorus for all bodily requirements. They are milk and milk products, egg-yolk, carrots, peas, beans, peanuts, nuts, cabbage, plain wheat (not refined flour or other refined wheat products), greens. I now add another item to the diet for "nervousness" or "nervous weakness," I, too, came by a medical degree in my youth and I am anxious to make some use of it. So I hereby dub fish, even fresh water fish but especially sea fish and shellfish as good nerve food—and it matters little whether you take oysters, lobster, canned salmon, caradines, brook trout or lake muskellunge or bass or perch. It is all good nerve food, and I'll tell you why.

All fish and shellfish contain more or less vitamin D, the sunshine vitamin, in their body fat as well as the fat or oil in their livers. Even the lowly burbot, allied to the cod, abounding in the Great Lakes, New England lakes and the lakes of Minnesota and Wisconsin, large quantities of which are used for fertilizer and scorned as food for man, has been found to be richer than cod or halibut in vitamin D and is now being exploited for the medicinal value of its liver oil and body oil.

If more fish and shellfish is included in the daily diet, the notorious shortage of vitamin D in the diet of the average American will be to some degree corrected. The only natural sources of vitamin D in the diet of the average American are milk, cream, butter and egg-yolk, and few do or can consume enough of these foods to get the required amount of vitamin D.

Vitamin D is essential for the absorption of calcium and its utilization in the body. So I say don't be nervous. Have some more of this fine salmon salad or now that the season is on let's have some fried oysters with

Your Birthday

"TAURUS"

If April 23, is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 10 a. m., until 12 noon; from 2 to 4 p. m., and from 8 to 10 p. m. The danger periods are from 8 to 10 a. m., from 6 to 8 p. m., and from 10 p. m. to midnight.

Impulsive actions will cause much embarrassment this day, so be deliberate in your movements and deportment in entering into agreements or making promises. The mislaying of personal belongings will be responsible for most of the quarrelling in many households this day. Before you place blame upon anyone be sure you are justified in doing so, as you are liable to find yourself in the position of eating an unpalatable piece of humble pie. The remedy for ill-humor this day, will be good nature and tactful replies, mixed well with an abundance of patience. It will pay to be in a receptive frame of mind for suggestions, for some one of them might help make this an enjoyable day. Should you find a preponderance of opinion against some idea you have submitted to several people, it might be wise not to appear to be too insistent that they accept it. Married and engaged couples, as well as those anticipating an early betrothal, will find that the assumption of an high and mighty manner will invite a lot of trouble.

If a woman and April 23 is your birthday, you may be a trifle selfish, indulgent, but by no means selfish. You are able to make yourself popular with all classes of people, and should have no difficulty in adjusting yourself to their peculiarities or environments. You perhaps enjoy anything that has an element of mystery about it. You may find yourself unexpectedly living in luxury. Through work of an educational, theatrical, musical, artistic or promotional nature you might wake up some day and find yourself quite famous. Your matrimonial wishes probably will come true the way you have hoped they would.

The child born on April 23, should be taught to love animals, and that pets must not be neglected. Patient reasoning usually accomplishes far more than corporal punishment or nagging. Children born on this date, as a rule, grow up to be useful and prosperous citizens.

If a man and April 23 is your natal day, you ought to be a convincing talker, essentially a family man, and very popular with your friends, and business associates. Through journalism, acting, promoting, selling, painting, manufacturing or selling your future may be assured.

Successful People Born on April 23:

Seen And Heard In New York

BY GEORGE TUCKER

New York — Today's essay concerns one of the newswriters in the crowded, hurrying atmosphere of the Times Square subway station. Like the drugstores and other quickie establishments in New York (quickie lunch, quickie indignation) the subway stands have long since succumbed to the Hudson Bay trading post complex—that is, they sell everything from gardenias to steel traps. And if you are lucky, you may even find a copy of your favorite newspaper.

Having been disgorged by the Seventh avenue express, and being in no hurry to board the shuttle train, which whisks one in a wink to Grand Central terminal, your correspondent was tarried idly by the news rack, sneaking a free glance at the late baseball scores, when a chap ambled up and asked for a can-opener.

"Thumb-screw type or old style?" inquired the Factor, being in no sense surprised by this request. "I wouldn't know one from the other," confessed the customer, "what do you recommend?" "Take this one," suggested the man behind the counter. "It'll cost you 25 cents."

Hardly had this satisfied lad been swallowed up by a BMT train than a nice old lady in a tweed coat hurried up and asked for a bicycle pump. The newsstand boss dived under the counter and came up with just the type she wanted. Another customer asked for—and received—a box of Turkish incense and a Vina Delmar novel.

It was after this rather weird sale that a little girl edged up to the stand and told the man she wanted a "nice doll that says mama when you turn it over."
"Just a moment," replied our magician, digging among some boxes on the floor. He came up with his face wreathed in smiles. "Here we are."

It was a nice doll, dressed in peasant fashion, and it did emit a sort of squawk when turned on its back. But its enunciation wasn't

A Bystander In Washington

BY FRESTON GROVER

Washington — If you gamble and lose, and want your losses deducted from your income tax returns, hark to the tale of Vina Delmar, the story writer, and her husband, Eugene Delmar, also a story writer.

To begin at the beginning, the Delmars are one New Year's Eve went from their Hollywood home to Agua Caliente, across the Mexican border. At 1 a. m., after the New Year's festivities had blown and all that, Eugene sat down to a serious game of chemin-de-fer.

First he lost a bit. Vina was at his elbow. She kept running to the cashier to cash checks to bring him fresh funds. Then he began winning. He pulled ahead $500. And that, perhaps, was the beginning and the end of the first day. But the game went right on and Eugene went with it and when he quit, on January 2, he had chalked up a loss of $1,200, which is a fair to middling loss even to a couple whose earnings some years clock up past the $50,000 mark.

But in between cashing checks for Eugene, Vina was not idle. She played roulette and she lost $300. Now arises the hitch.

How It Was Decided

The two submitted separate income tax returns, each claiming half of the $1,500 loss. The board of tax appeals allowed a tax deduction for the $1,200 lost by Eugene but denied them the $300 lost by Vina, claiming that he had played for money but she had played only for fun.

Now why? It is all a matter of intent. Eugene set out to show that he seriously intended to profit at the game.

"The game was a very large game," he told the board. "There were banks going up for as much as $5,000. And it was a beautiful spot for somebody who understood a little about the game, which I thought I did, to go in there and just knock out about $10,000. And I tried it, but it didn't work."

"Was the pleasure involved in it a material factor in your decision to get into the game?" he was asked.

"There was no pleasure in that kind of a chemin-de-fer game. That washed me up, I quit."

To prove that he was no greenhorn he explained that he had tried out the game in Paris one time and "spent two years in the army shooting craps." That was during the war.

"I came out of the army, a buck private, with better than $2,000. If you don't think that is something—I."

Well, the board thought it was something, plenty, in fact. He submitted evidence the checks that he and Vina had cashed and was allowed the full $1,200 deduction.

But Vina didn't testify. Eugene merely said that "she played roulette, but very small. She is a very small gambler." The board assumed she was just frolicking around when she lost $300, and was not serious about winning.

Profit Or Fun

The board itself was not frivolous in the matter. It has long ruled that owners of racing stables can deduct for losses if they prove they seriously intended to make money out of the game. George Widener was allowed deductions, and so was Richard Whitney.

The board is pretty hard on losers at bridge. In most states gambling is illegal, anyway, and that puts such losses in a bad light, for tax purposes. So maybe, after all, you had just as well play for fun and kiss your losses good-bye.

TAUGHT EACH OTHER

Waxahatchee, N. J.—Trinity University officials believe some sort of a record has been established here.

Miss Maude Davis, dean of women, has been connected with the university 25 years. Also on the Trinity staff is J. B. Ford, who taught Miss Davis her college chemistry.

George A. Newton, another faculty member, taught Mr. Ford his college mathematics.

The man who taught Newton in college, Dr. S. L. Hornbeck, also is a member of Trinity faculty. He is a former president of the university.

Cotton was grown near Charleston, S. C., as early as 1770.

very clear. You couldn't understand it word by word. "It just won't do," decided the little girl. "It doesn't say Mama and I want a doll that says Mama."

"Let me see it," said the perturbed salesman. For a few minutes he studied the doll closely, turning it over and listening intently to its mechanized gurglings. Suddenly his face lit up. "Ah," he cried triumphantly. "This doll is okay. You just don't understand it. It speaks in Italian."

This hook her has a real twister to its tail. For several months there have been excavations on 45th street at Sixth avenue, and the other night a happily goofy mandarin-lost track of himself and plunged headlong into one of the openings.

"Murder, thieves, help, earthquake!" shrieked the fellow at the top of his voice. "Help, police, police!"

They hauled him out and dusted him off, insisting volubly that the earth had risen and swallowed him whole. However, when he admitted he had tried out 14 classes of the new "hook" they shoed him into a cab and told him to get the devil away from there.

Hatten Employees Group Forms New Independent Union

Old Association Dissolved; State Recognition to Be Sought

New London — The Hatten Employees association, independent labor organization of employees of the Hatten Lumber company, dissolved at a meeting at the city hall yesterday afternoon and immediately reorganized into the Independent Lumber Workers union.

The action was taken, leaders explained, to give the group a fresh start towards securing a listing with the state labor relations board as a bona fide labor union. A listing was denied the Hatten Employees association after a hearing in February.

An appeal on the denial to a state court was considered by the association but the plan was dropped when it was learned there was no provision for such an appeal in the state labor relations law and the action would be a pioneer case. The alternative of appealing to the United States Supreme court was dismissed because of the cost, officials explained.

Officers of the new Independent Lumber Workers are George Vandenberg, president; Norman Krause, vice president; Kenneth Meishe, financial secretary; Adolph Meshek, recording secretary; Henry Ploetz, treasurer; and Albert Meertz, doorman.

A hearing was held at the city hall this afternoon by the state labor board to determine whether a vote shall be taken among employees of the Hatten Lumber company to decide which group is in the majority and entitled to sole bargaining rights, the Lumber and Sawmill Workers, Local 2876, an A. F. of L. affiliate, or the Independent or non-union laborers. Both groups petitioned for the hearing.

10 Schools to Take Part In Festival at Seymour

Seymour — Ten schools will participate in the first inter-school music festival ever to be held in Seymour. Schools planning to participate in the event are Denmark, Freedom, Hilbert, Hortonville, Kimberly, Manawa, Pulaski, Reedsville, Wrightstown and Seymour. Seven schools will send bands, four will enter glee clubs and one school will be represented by an orchestra. The day's events will get underway at 9:30 when all organizations are scheduled to register at the high school and secure their room assignments. Critic judges who will be on hand to give these musical organizations some practical suggestions as to how to improve their performance are Prof. E. C. Moore and Prof. A. A. Glockzin, both of Lawrence college conservatory, Appleton. All events of the festival are open to the public.

The morning program will begin promptly at 10 o'clock with a concert by the Seymour band. This will be followed at 11 o'clock by intervals by concerts given by bands from Pulaski, Kimberly, Hortonville and Manawa. Admission to these concerts, which will be given in the school gymnasium, is free.

Beginning at 1 o'clock, there will be two events: the orchestra from Wrightstown and bands from Hilbert and Denmark will be heard in the gymnasium and the glee clubs from Freedom, Hilbert, Wrightstown and Seymour, as well as the mixed chorus of the Seymour high school, will sing short concerts in the high school auditorium. Admission is free to both these events.

A food stand will be operated by the Music Activity club in the recreation room on the first floor of the new building. It is expected that almost 500 school musicians will take part in the festival.

Parade in Afternoon

The Seymour Music Festival is not the regular spring tournament, but is a get-together among a number of schools for the purpose of promoting a finer relationship among these schools and for the purpose of giving the people in this area an opportunity to experience some of the enthusiasm which comes from activities of this kind. The Seymour festival will be conducted like a regular district tournament.

The most spectacular event of the day will be the parade to take place at 3 o'clock. Bands from Denmark, Hilbert, Hortonville, Kimberly, Manawa, Pulaski and Seymour will participate. Between 2 and 3 o'clock these bands will march south on Main street and line up at various points near the Methodist church. The line of march will be from the corner at the Methodist church to the Lutheran church on Main street. Each band will be preceded by a uniformed boy scout carrying a banner giving the name of the city from which the band comes. The bandstand in the Legion square will be used as the reviewing stand. City and school officials as well as visiting school principals and directors have been invited to occupy a position in the reviewing stand. Each band will be required to play as it passes the stand, as well as other points along the line of march.

It will be possible to view the parade at practically any point along Main street. Through the cooperation of city officials, all cars will be asked to park on side streets just before and during the parade. It will enable everyone to view the parade with unobstructed vision, and it will also enable bands to march in open formation and to show certain maneuvers while coming down the street.

The final event of the day will be a grand concert to be held at 7:30 in the gymnasium. A small admission will be charged to help defray expenses. Two bands and one chorus, together with several solos and ensembles, will make up the program.

Pegler Sees No Reason For Tax Exempt Salaries

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York—We will now hear once again the fine-haired constitutional reason why it would be dangerous to our liberties, to the integrity of the states, the sacred heritage of Valley Forge and the virtue of American womanhood to extend the federal income tax to the salaries of the state, county and municipal employees and the state income taxes to the salaries of federal employees residing in states which have this tax.

Mr. Roosevelt himself, who is included among those who have obtained their civilization at a cut rate for many years, has openly endorsed this proposition. Nobody ever has offered any objection to the proposition that the great army of partial and total deadheads should be compelled to pay in proportion to their income, the same as the rest of us. As governor of New York and as a member of the legislature before that, Mr. Roosevelt was not required to pay the federal income tax on his public pay. As president, at a high salary, plus furnish, he has been exempt from the New York state tax, which is a money that would have cost him about $7,500 a year these last six years.

However, it must be said that Mr. Roosevelt has now taken the stand against the little Oakley privilege inherent in public office.

He gets a star on his report card for that, but only a silver star, not a gold one, because the idea never occurred to him that he, too, had been thumbing his way at the expense of his fellow citizens until he made his crack about taxes being the price that we pay for civilization and about some people's inclination to ride half fare and was brought to a sudden realization that, for much of his adult life, he had been riding his thumb himself.

Public officials and employees get that way, and the president apparently did not realize that he was one of the somewhat exempt until he said what he said and heard echo answer, "Listen who's talking about deadheads."

After Public Official Gets His Pay It's His. In opposition to the president's current proposal it is argued that to tax public salaries, drawn out of the public kitty and derived from the taxes of the rest of us, would be to diminish those salaries and impose a federal tax on the functions of the states and a state tax on the agencies of the federal government.

It would do nothing of the kind. After a public official has drawn his pay the money is his. It is just as fair game for the tax collector as any other person's pay. By the same argument, the income tax levied on a citizen in private employment, could be regarded as a tax on that citizen's employer. By the same reasoning, any stickup man or ryp who hoisted any parasite on the federal pay roll in New York or Louisiana or swindled him with an Arkansas diamond could be accused of an offense against the United States treasury.

That is all there is to the objection. It goes back to a supreme court decision in 1819, long before the income tax was thought of, which held that the federal government could not tax the states and vice versa. That principle is not involved in this proposal. It is childish to argue that a tax on a governor's salary is a tax on the state treasury from which he draws the money. If so, then a tax on John Lewis' salary of $25,000 a year is a tax on the exempt treasury of the United Mine Workers and, if paid, should be refunded. If so, then a tax on Charlie

Native Plants are Aid in Protecting Land From Erosion

Farmers Have Wide Choice Of Growths Suitable For This Purpose

Wisconsin and Outagamie county farmers, who plan to take part in the 1933 Agricultural conservation program in order to better protect their farm land that is subject to erosion and gullying, have a wide choice of native plants that are suitable for this purpose. Many of these, according to conservation officials, may also be used to count in earning benefit payments for following soil-building practices under the 1933 program.

Lytle Sowls, Darlington, a research student of game management at the Wisconsin college of agriculture, points out that the particular choice of plants may be determined by their soil requirements or by the climate. Some thrive better in acid soils, some prefer damp spots to the drier areas. That is one reason suggested for choosing native plants.

Pine trees rank at the top among plants that are valuable in protecting the soil. Sowls points out that Norway spruce grow well in most parts of the state, white pine is good in the bluest-forest areas, and Austrian pine grows well on alkaline soils. Such trees are also valuable to wild life for their seeds, as browse, and as wildlife cover.

Norway spruce and white spruce are valuable for seeds and cover, red cedar for cover and fruit, and white cedar for cover on the wetter areas. Other plants, in the order of their importance and value to game and also in protecting the soil, include bluegrass, butternut and black walnut trees, pignut shagbark hickory, cottonwoods, aspens, willows, hazelnuts, birch, alders, (wet land), oak, American elm, hackberry, Russian mulberry, red mulberry, Hawthorn, chokeberry, American mountain-ash, and apple.

For farmers who are especially interested in maintaining wildlife, Sowls would be sure to include serviceberry, black berry, raspberry, rose, wild plum, black locust, wild bean, sunac, wahoo, American bitersweet, Jersey-tea, grapes, Virginia creeper, gray dogwood, red osier, blueberry, cranberrybush, arrowwood, and blackhaw as valuable plants.

On abandoned fields, payments will amount to one third of the amount that would have been earned by a normal yield. Where the sugar beet crop was short, payments will be calculated on the basis of 80 per cent of a normal crop. Such payments are authorized under the sugar act of 1937.

Normal yields of sugar beets on farms that planted beets during three or more of the years 1930 to 1936 will be the actual average production for such years on those farms.

Where sugar beets were planted only one or two of the years the "normal" yield will be based on the county averages and the relative

Federal Purchases Help Overburdened State Farm Markets

More than 13,250,000 pounds of food products were purchased in Wisconsin and removed from overburdened markets during 1937 by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation in cooperation with the Agricultural Adjustment administration, according to Arlie Mucks, coordinator of the Wisconsin Agricultural Extension service in a letter to R. C. Swanson, Outagamie county agricultural agent.

The primary object of these surplus-removal programs, it is explained, is to stabilize markets and protect returns to growers.

Surplus agricultural commodities purchased in Wisconsin last year included 6,685,043 pounds of dry skim milk; 6,093,700 pounds of evaporated milk; 216,000 pounds of white potatoes, and 216,000 dozen eggs.

The corporation also purchased 30,150 pounds of surplus frozen fish in Wisconsin during the year under a special act of Congress.

This surplus food was sent to relief and welfare agencies in various states for the use of persons on relief rolls.

Benefit Payments Are Set on Sugar

60 Cents Per 100 Pounds Will Be Paid Under Conservation Program

Sugar benefit payments to Wisconsin producers of sugar beets last year will amount to 60 cents for each 100 pounds of commercial recoverable sugar in their 1937 crop, according to the Agricultural Conservation committee in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, county agent.

On fields that were abandoned or that had a short crop due to causes without the control of producers, such as flood, storm and freezing, abandonment or deficiency payments will be made by the Agricultural Adjustment administration, according to the announcement received.

On abandoned fields, payments will amount to one third of the amount that would have been earned by a normal yield. Where the sugar beet crop was short, payments will be calculated on the basis of 80 per cent of a normal crop. Such payments are authorized under the sugar act of 1937.

Normal yields of sugar beets on farms that planted beets during three or more of the years 1930 to 1936 will be the actual average production for such years on those farms.

Where sugar beets were planted only one or two of the years the "normal" yield will be based on the county averages and the relative

Improve Vegetable Garden Through Variety Planting

Size of the available garden area and what the family likes commonly determine the kinds of vegetables grown in gardens but these should not be the only considerations, according to James G. Moor of the college of agriculture, in a bulletin to R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent. Other considerations should be whether the list will furnish vegetables for the entire 12 months, what nutrients they have and whether they will be successful under prevailing conditions.

Among the annual vegetables which should be in every garden, if possible, are beans, beets, cabbage, carrots, chard, onions, parsnips, potatoes, rutabagas, squash, sweet corn and tomatoes.

To this list there should ordinarily be added, branching broccoli, cucumbers, lettuce, radish, and spinach. On small areas squash and potatoes would probably have to be omitted.

Of the vegetables given in the "must" list, five might be questioned—chard, parsnip, potatoes, rutabaga, squash. Why are they included? Chard, because it gives a continuous source of greens through the season; parsnips because they add variety to the root vegetables for winter use and with a little protection can be left in the ground for early spring use. They do not become poisonous as it sometimes is thought. Potatoes are an indispensable crop.

Become Bitter The only reason for leaving rutabagas out of the home garden is because sometimes under unfavorable growth conditions they become bitter.

Squash is possibly the most questionable of the list and there may be sections in the state where the true winter squash cannot be raised successfully because of too short a growing season. Well grown squash ranks as a high class vegetable and one which adds desirable variety to the late fall and early winter diet. The small, earlier maturing Table Queen type, although possibly not so good as the Hubbard type, is a good substitute where Hubbard cannot be grown.

A garden probably would be considered incomplete without radishes and lettuce. They have high value productivity of the farm. Such estimated yields may range between 80 and 120 per cent of the county average.

Where no sugar beets were planted during those years, the normal yield will be established at 80 per cent of the county average, the state committee learns.

as providing something early before the real substantial vegetables are ready. Spinach should be added to this list.

Branching broccoli is comparatively new, but it is one of the coming vegetables. It is excellent used like spinach or chard, or as a salad, either warm or cold, with a favorite salad dressing.

Of the second choice list, cucumber is the least valuable, requires the most space, and is the most uncertain.

Advise Against Early-and-Often Alfalfa Cuttings

Agronomists Caution Against System Which Results in Low Yields

Wisconsin farmers cannot follow the "early and often" system of cutting alfalfa if they want their stands to live and to yield well over a period of years, according to L. F. Graber and V. G. Sprague of the field crops staff of the state university who have conducted alfalfa management trials for the last eight years.

While these investigators realize that "early and often" cutting generally produces the best quality hay, and that for making alfalfa silage it seems to be the only method that is capable of bringing about production of super-quality milk, they caution anyone who uses this system needs to have his eyes wide open to the facts that usually he will not get as high yields as he could with twice-a-year cutting, and that his stand probably will not last more than two or three years.

As they see it, the choice often is between no alfalfa and alfalfa of moderate quality, for many farmers feel it is too expensive to grow this crop in a short rotation. The seed is fairly costly, and it is usually somewhat expensive to put the land into shape for alfalfa.

Present Policy Viewing the late-wide situation, the agronomists insist that if Wisconsin is to hold its present position of being one of the four states in the union with more than a million acres of alfalfa, than a large proportion of its farmers will need to continue their present policy of setting aside certain fields for this crop—haying and fertilizing to make conditions right—and using hardy varieties. In addition it is thought that a larger number will need to

Federation Names Delegates to 6th District Meeting

Two Short Plays Given At Gathering of Rural Women's Clubs

Outagamie County Federation of Rural Women's clubs, at a quarterly meeting Wednesday at Appleton Woman's club, elected Mrs. H. M. Culbertson, Mrs. R. J. Doersch and Mrs. Donald Brownson as delegates and Mrs. Charles Rau, Mrs. Ervin Tellock and Mrs. Seldon Powell alternates to the eighth district convention of Wisconsin Federation of Women's clubs which will be held May 25 and 26 at Marinette.

Mrs. John Schoettler, by virtue of her office as county president, will be a delegate also.

The program at the meeting Wednesday consisted of two short plays. The Seymour and Osborn groups presented "An Ounce of Prevention" with the following taking part: Mrs. R. J. Doersch, Mrs. Charles Rau, Mrs. H. Nagel, Mrs. William Hallada, Mrs. Wesley Sherman, Mrs. Seldon Powell, Mrs. Earl Little, Mrs. Carl Mielke, Mrs. Henry Hauch and Mrs. Donald Brownson. "Pat's Matrimonial Adventure" was the name of a play given by Jolly Workers home economics group. The cast included Mrs. Merle Culbertson, Mrs. Ervin Tellock and Mrs. Sherman Kline, and the director was Mrs. Henry Culbertson.

Piano Solo Mrs. H. M. Culbertson, Greenville, gave a piano solo entitled "The Golden Sunbeam," and Mrs. Louis Huebner and Mrs. Ervin Tellock presented a vocal duet, "There's a Gold Mine in the Sky," accompanied by Mrs. H. M. Culbertson.

Plans were made for a picnic for members of the county federation, their husbands and families July 24 at the cottage of Judge and Mrs. E. V. Werner at Shawano lake. Three guests were present at the meeting Wednesday, Mrs. L. M. Schindler, president of Appleton Woman's club, Mrs. E. V. Werner and Mrs. George Wettengel, district officers.

The meeting opened in the morning and the women had a noon luncheon. Mrs. John Schoettler presided at the sessions.

Card Party The Band Boosters of Hortonville will sponsor a benefit card party Monday night at the Community hall for the purpose of raising money for a curtain for the stage of the hall. Mrs. Ed Kluge, president of the Band Boosters, is chairman of the party.

State Fair Premiums To Amount of $85,600

A total of $85,600 will be offered in agricultural premiums at the 1938 state fair Aug. 20-28, according to Ralph E. Ammon, acting director of the department of agriculture and markets and state fair manager, in an announcement received by R. C. Swanson, county agricultural agent.

This figure represents the largest amount that has ever been offered in premiums on livestock and agricultural products in the history of the fair. It is $53,600 more than was offered in the years 1932-33 when it was necessary to reduce the amounts to $32,000.

The largest single amount has been allocated to the dairy cattle department, where $18,000 will be awarded in premiums. The junior fair will be allotted $17,500 for that purpose.

Some of the other larger assignments will be made as follows: Horses, $9,000; swine, $5,200; sheep, $4,600; dairy products, $4,000; poultry, $2,600; rabbit and fur, $2,500; women's department, $2,000; rural recreation, $1,500; and honey, $1,200.

for all women and girls of Hortonville will be sponsored by the Baptist Ladies Aid society of Hortonville May 4 at the Community hall. Mrs. Elmer Root is chairman of the committee in charge which includes Mrs. Milford Steffen, Mrs. Esther Hearte, and Mrs. Steve Otis.

Mrs. Adeline Rabe, Whitewater, formerly Methodist minister at Hortonville, will be the speaker, and there will be readings and musical selections on the program.

Vike Tracksters Show Tomorrow

Meet Carroll Here in First Dual Meet of Season

TWO MEN AILING

Captain Sam Leete and Cochrane Nursing
Injuries

THREE Lawrence college sports teams will open spring competition Saturday against Carroll college squads. The track teams will clash at Whiting field starting at 2 o'clock, the golf teams will play 18 holes over the Butte des Morts course starting at 12 o'clock and the tennis squads will show on the campus courts starting at 1:30. The track squad will go into competition with two of its best men limited or not competing. Sam Leete, captain of the team, may show only in the high jump because of a recent injury while Cochrane, sprinter, may not show at all. Both men were injured in workouts during the last ten days and with the weather cold and windy Coach Denney isn't taking any chances on aggravating their hurts.

Have Lot of Talent

However, the Vikes have a lot of talent to draw from and thereby hope to continue their record of victories in all dual meets over a period of about two years. The best bets for Lawrence appear to be Joe Graf and Evan Vande Walle in the two dashes and the broad jump, Frank Schubert in the mile and Junior Kapp in the shot and discus. Leete, if he competes, will show in the high jump where his injured leg won't get a hard workout. He should place among the leaders.

The only competition the Vikes have had to date was the interfraternity meet Monday and Tuesday in which only non-letter winners showed. The Phi Deltis won honors with 48 points with the Sigmas second and the Deltis third. Four interfraternity records were broken and one tied.

Going over his squad yesterday, Coach Denney listed his possibilities something like this: 100-yard dash—Graf, Buesing and Vande Walle. 220-yard dash—Graf, Vande Walle and Gerlach. 440-yard dash—Cape, Vande Walle, Lockery, Bridges and Gerlach.

High hurdles—Stevens and Purdy. Low hurdles—Stevens, Leete and Buesing.

Half mile—Graf, Lockery and Cole. Mile run—Schubert, Grode and Cole.

Two-mile run—Sheldon, Hecker and Swamer. Pole vault—Callin and Purdy.

High jump—Leete, Crawford, Rosebush, Cape. Shot—Kapp, Maertzwiler and Bridges.

Discus—Kapp, Masterson and Westberg. Javelin—Burton, Osborn and Arthur.

Half mile relay—Graf, Buesing, Vande Walle and Gerlach. Four golfers will make up the team which plays the Pioneers.

The match will be 18 holes Nassau scoring. Men nominated are Ed Rath, John Bartholomew, Stan Zwerger and Gerald Szyzyski.

The entire squad of eight tennis players probably will see action. The netters are being coached by Prof. Frank Clippinger and have

Settle Four Viking Ring Championships In 'Exciting' Bouts

Four Lawrence college boxing champions were crowned after "exciting" bouts at Alexander gymnasium yesterday afternoon. The battles were under the direction of Coach Ade Dillon and medals were awarded the winners.

Don Weidman proved too much for Don Weidman and scored two knockdowns to win the 145-pound title. Allen Bunker defeated Harry Tom Purdy in the 135-pound class while Bob Knox decisively won at 125 pounds in one of the best bouts on the card. George Mickelson "defeated" Charles Gerlach for the heavyweight title.

Other champions who won in previous bouts are Marty Bridges, 165 pounds; Charles Gerlach, 175 pounds; Keith McClatchie, 155 pounds; John Mc Cune, 115 pounds.

Oklahoma City—(AP)—John (Pepper) Martin played hookey from the St. Louis Cardinals to see an ailing daughter here—but all he could do was stand outside the window and make faces at her.

"I just had to come," said the Pepper today. "I didn't tell anyone in the front office. My mother had diphtheria once and it's a terrible thing."

JOE STARTS LONG TRAIN RIDE

Clutching a paper which told of his signing the $25,000 contract offered by Col. Jacob Ruppert, Joe DiMaggio is shown as he left San Francisco to rejoin the New York Yankees. Joe reconsidered his demands for $40,000 after a three-month holdout siege.

Master Milers In Special Race

Cunningham, San Romani, Venkze and Lash in Special Event

Lawrence, Kas.—(AP)—Kansas relay officials set out to make the 1938 event tomorrow the best in its 16-year history, and they have won by a mile.

It is a very special mile, matching Glenn Cunningham, Archie San Romani, Gene Venkze and Don Lash in their first outdoor race of the season. Fans hopefully scan weather reports and track conditions to calculate chances of a new world record.

Meanwhile the trail blazers of an army of young athletes representing 21 universities, 30 colleges and 12 junior colleges began to seep into Lawrence to look over the oval where they will seek to better records that already, in most instances, approach the ultimate.

Possibility of new relay marks is dim. A fast field last year was able to break only one record. Indiana, which won four relay events, set up a new time of 4:23.2 in the mile team race.

However, special event records appeared in peril with several entrants capable of making the grade if conditions are right.

Industrial Bowling Loop Holds Banquet

Walter Gressenz was reelected president and H. J. Weller secretary of the Industrial Bowling League at the annual banquet last night at the Elks club. About 70 keggers attended the party and heard talks by various team captains and bowlers, received prizes and made plans for next year.

The Tattle Press and Woolen Mills, co-champions, were given trophies. The bowlers also presented Secretary Weller with a gift.

The league rolled on Arcade alleys.

More Than 125 Prizes to be Offered at Fishermen's Party Next Tuesday Night

BY GORDON MCINTYRE
WITH a prize list of 126 gifts or combinations of gifts and with the value ranging from $82.50 for the Evinrude outboard motor being offered by Douglas Kaufman down to $1.25 for some of the combinations, the finishing touches are being put on the Appleton Post-Crescent's fishermen's party Tuesday evening at Armory G.

The evening's entertainment will open at 7:30 when an orchestra from plenty of good cheer Koester Beverages, Voigt Drug store, Lowell Drug Store, Metropolitan Cafe, and John Gertrits have offered prizes that'll cheer you on any fishing trip.

E. W. Shannon is offering a bird bath that will be an excellent addition to someone's lawn. It's really a nice gift for a person interested in conservation and wild life.

Badger Paint company has given us four quart of Spar Varnish, its flood or fire, the formal program will open. It should be over at 10 o'clock at which time the soul-stirring business of drawing for prizes will be started with Judge Fred V. Heinemann picking the numbers.

As the numbers are drawn they'll be taken up for there'll be only one prize to a person. That's one reason why we've placed a fifth of Martin's V. V. as the prize preceding the drawing for the motor.

The gift is from the P. and J. Tobacco company and will be a consolation for the fact, the winner won't get a chance at the motor.

Many prizes have been received in the last few days and haven't been mentioned before.

Oscar Kunitz is offering ten free parkings at his lot, day or night, and that will be a highly convenient gift.

The Foot Health Clinic has given 12 bottles of foot lotion which will be distributed as 12 prizes or combinations.

John Haug and Son is offering a five pound can of grease that should come in mighty handy during this machine age.

Walgreen's gift is a rod and reel and who doesn't appreciate a gift like that?

Still other gifts are a sweater coat by Behnke's, a case of Garrett's wines by the P. and J. Tobacco company along with six pints of Old Quaker, a trench coat style rain coat being offered by Geenen's and there's a sweater from Ferron's.

They're Valuable, Too

All of which indicates there's a goodly number of gifts and almost every tenth person is assured of something that will be almost double the admission price.

After the program and drawing of prizes there'll be free beer served from at least three bars and a Dutch lunch of good old German rye bread, cheese and cold meats. The lunch is being prepared by Gus Karras, the chef at Hotel Appleton.

H. S. Track Team Meets Manitowoc There Saturday

Terrors Will Depend on Handful of Veterans
For Win

APPLETON High school track and field squad will open the outdoor season Saturday afternoon when it risks pneumonia and a tramping at Manitowoc which, as you know, is located on Lake Michigan where the breezes are much cooler than even at Whiting field.

The Terrors have been practicing out-of-doors only a week and had their first time trials last night with results failing to set the coaches agog. Previous to this week several members of the team worked in the Lawrence indoor track room and other veterans have had the benefit of experience in the Wisconsin Rapids indoor meet.

Captain Carl Bohmsack and six other boys who have been through the track wars before will be expected to carry the burden of the Terror attack. Bohmsack, completely recovered from a thyroid ailment and operation last year, will show in the broad jump and pole vault where he should annex two firsts. He also may be entered in the dashes depending on the weather and his physical condition.

Enter Rogers in Mile

Kay Rogers is expected to do the most in the mile run and Ralph Colvin in the 880. Fred Oliver looks like the best bet in the quarter and Bowers will be the prime favorite in the hurdles. Sonny Filz is to be entered in the dashes and will pick up a few points while Don Heinritz will make his debut in the shot and discus. He's been working on the events since early this spring and is looked upon as a likely successor to Vine Jones.

Coach Shields was expected to nominate the remainder of his squad some time today. He'll need a few surprises on the part of some of his new boys to help the veterans if he wins.

Reports from Manitowoc are that the lake shore school still is in the dumps in track. Nello Pacetti is coaching the team this season but has found his charges all are runners and none know about the field events. However, Beduhn will be a threat in the shot and discus and with the help of a few other lads may give Appleton a battle.

Run some more letters, Mac. I want to answer them. I got a lot of time now the co-eds are home on a vacation.

Yours Truly,
"Roundy" Coughlin.

Complete Organization Of Northern State Loop

New London—The Northern State baseball league polished off the business end of the pre-season activities at a meeting here last night with the collection of franchise fees, appointment of umpires and settlement of other little details that crop up in the operation of the fast stepping circuit which the Northern State promises to be this season.

All league officers and representatives of all eight clubs were present. Franchise checks were dumped in the lap of John Coppes, Kaukauna, treasurer, as soon as they were called for.

Several player differences were wrangled over around the table with the outcome left to respective managers. E. Vande Walle, Nichols short stop, differences came over to the New London Miller High Life club with Seymour taking Kroening of Oshkosh in return. Final player lists aren't due until the first game of the season May 8 and may be turned in to the umpire at that time.

Illini to Defend Baseball Pennant

Big Ten Teams Swing Into Action Along
Entire Front

Chicago—(AP)—Championship baseball along the entire Big Ten front moved into action today.

Wisconsin and Michigan jumped the gun on the rest of the field earlier in the week with the Badgers winning 4 to 2, but today all 10 members were scheduled to begin two-game conference assignments.

The University of Illinois, 1937 winner, will open its title defense at Champaign against Michigan today and tomorrow. Its championship team virtually erased by graduation and with Pitcher Ray Paot, voted most valuable player of the Big Ten last year, on the sidelines for the season because of an elbow injury, Illinois nevertheless has indicated in pre-conference games it still must be reckoned with.

Indiana, which finished in the runner-up role last year, went to Columbus for two games with Ohio State, while Wisconsin's team of 1937, however, Fox remains the only one who has cleared the left field stand.

All were achieved since greater Comiskey park was dedicated in 1927. However, Fox remains the only one who has cleared the left field stand.

Attorney Generals to

Madison—(AP)—Attorney General Orland S. Loomis of Wisconsin and Attorney General William I. Ervin of Minnesota will file a brief with the United States Supreme court contesting the validity of the federal admissions tax on intercollegiate athletic contest, Loomis advised today.

The regents of the University of Georgia and Georgia school of Technology brought action and the Wisconsin-Minnesota brief will be filed as a friend of the court.

The high court agreed recently to review a decision holding invalid the federal admissions tax as applied to tickets sold by state universities for athletic events through their athletic association.

Not since 1936 has the University of Wisconsin paid the tax, because most of the other state colleges were not turning the tax over to the government.

CINCINNATI—(AP)—Paul Derringer limited Chicago to four hits yesterday while his mates garnered 13 off of Tex Carleton to win, 6 to 2, for the Cincinnati Reds' first victory of the season.

It was the Cubs' initial setback after two straight triumphs, one credited to Dizzy Dean.

In the fourth inning Derringer hurled only four balls to retire the side. Carleton was hit in every inning.

Homers marked scoring for each side in the third. O'Dea connected to score behind Lazzeri, who had walked to open the frame, and Goodman, first man up in the Reds' half, clouted another.

Parents May Expect Too Much From School Child

BY ANGELO PATRI

Sam is quick, lively and active. When the teacher calls on a child he turns instantly to see how he takes it. If somebody drops his pencil he is on the spot to pick it up and, of course, march leisurely around the room on his way back. He has to be polite, hasn't he? He can't pass in front of the class, can he?

Of course Sam fails to get a gold star on Friday afternoon. His friend Abie never fails. Never does the teacher have to look at Abie so certain he is to be doing exactly right. Every Friday afternoon when the Beginners Class are summed up and judged, Abie hands up five blue stars and gets a shining gold one which he carries home to mother, who proudly mounts it on a chart that hangs right by the living-room door in sight of all visitors.

"Sammie, why don't you get a gold star like Abie?"

"She won't give me any."

"That's because you are a bad boy, Sammie. Now this week you try hard, and if you get one—you are listening to me, Sammie? You don't look it. If you get one, I will buy you a new bicycle, the one with the balloon tires."

Sammie pondered the idea. To get a gold star for himself was out of the question. He knew his limitations. A in reading he could get, but A in conduct, never. But there was Abie. "If you give me your gold star I'll let you ride my bike once for every time I ride it. Yes?"

"No," said Abie.

"No? You will or I'll punch your block off."

Abie thought that over. Sammie might do it. That night, "Mamma, will you come to school Friday and see me get my gold star? I want to see you see how Miss Jennie likes me because I get gold stars."

"Would Miss Jennie like me to?"

"Yes. She likes you to. You come, mamma."

Sammie too, was planning. "Did you buy my bike yet, papa?"

Take-Out Double is Dangerous

BY ELY CULBERTSON

The best advice that I can give the would-be bridge expert is to keep his take-out doubles above reproach. Of course, there are a multitude of other points which can become pitfalls for the unwary, but none is more important than this department of take-out doubles. Some of the greatest catastrophes I have seen at the bridge table resulted from the misuse of this highly effective, but delicate weapon.

In the hand described below a 2,000 point penalty followed East's horrible take-out double.

North, dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

The bidding:

North Spade Double Pass Pass
East Double 2 hearts Double Pass
South Redouble Double Pass
West Pass Pass Pass Pass

Before I describe the play and report the gruesome fact that East took precisely one trick, the trump ace, on his eighth trick contract, let us devote our attention to the more important phase, the bidding.

North's spade bid obviously was based on a shaded biddable suit, but probably was his best choice, and it certainly had a splendid outcome.

East's take-out double was the sort of bid that fairly begs for trouble. A substantial part of East's unsubstantial strength was in the spade suit itself where it could be highly valuable on defense but of questionable worth if East-West should play the hand. East should have no bid whatever. He should have passed with the hope that the opponents would climb to a high spade contract against which he, of course, would have splendid defense.

I call special attention to South's redouble. Many players are afraid of this type of redouble on the ground that they have such bad support for partner's suit. Under normal circumstances, I grant, adequate trump support is desirable, but in this situation South rightly assumed that his great strength in diamonds and clubs would be ample compensation, at the one level, for his singleton spade. It makes a vast amount of difference in so far as trump support is concerned whether declarer will be called upon to take only seven tricks, or nine, or ten. At the lower range individual tricks, as represented by aces and kings, often are sufficient, whereas, at the higher ranges establishment plays usually become necessary. Thus, a redouble such as South's in this hand is strongly recommended because it has the dual advantage of offering a chance for game by merely taking seven tricks, or slaughtering the opponents if they run from the redouble.

West should not have passed to the redouble, such a pass indicating "acceptance," and of course West's holding did not warrant such acceptance. He should have taken out to two clubs, which would have been at least one trick better than two hearts. East on top of his previous dangerous takeout double, also was guilty of a horrible choice when it came to rescuing himself. One trump would have been a much more logical rescue, leaving the way open to a bid of any other suit at the two level.

There was not much to the play. South decided that he would do more harm by attacking the trump suit itself than by ruffing a couple of spades, hence opened the heart jack. After that inspired lead East was helpless to take a single trick, except the heart ace. He led a spade. North won with the ace and returned the king, queen, and a low heart. South then led the club jack through dummy's queen, and it was all over, a diamond return from North settled declarer's hand.

Sammie turned pale. In the wardrobe he punched Abie good and hard, and Abie cried, and the other children called teacher. The tale was told. Miss Jennie looked thoughtful. "Well," said she, "next week I am going to give gold stars for good work in lessons. Maybe Sammie can win one then and get his bike." Sammie thought he could. So did mamma and papa. Which is all true, of course. But the question is if you take away all the lures that lead to marriage, would anybody ever get married? Would any man ever want to marry the girl who chose to up her Adam's apple when they took to ask Angelina or Mary Jane to be theirs. Glib talkers find them dumb when they reach the crucial point in the courtship. Many a long drawn-out "keeping company" gets longer because the Boy Friend can never summon up nerve enough to pop the question. And many a poor girl gets so worn out waiting for a dilly-dilly lover to mention wedding rings that she has to bring up the subject herself.

Just why a man who isn't bashful asking for anything else he desires should get so shy when he offers a girl a lifetime job to marry him is a question that has puzzled many a philosopher. Maybe it is his Guardian Angel whispering a last warning to him to go slow, that he is about to tie a knot with his tongue that he can't untie with his teeth. Or something.

And when a man had beguiled a girl to look at a new house and sandwiched his will-you-be-mine-in-between his ballyhoo about the plumbing and the heating apparatus.

I have known a widower to tell the girl he was asking to marry him that the reason he fell for her was because she reminded him so much of his first wife. And another who seemed to think that a girl would jump at the chance to marry him when he informed her that he was looking for a good cook and that her apple pie had hit the vulnerable spot in him.

Of course, women do say "yes" to his proposal if they want the man, no matter how much it wrecks their romantic dreams, but it is a bitter pill for them to swallow.

But, alas and alack, how different is real life from the movies! When and how and where do men propose? I have known a man to ask the vital question when he and

Big Birds of New Zealand

Just a hundred years ago this year, the Rev. W. Colenso—later Bishop of New Zealand—heard a strange tale from natives of New Zealand. At the time, he was a missionary and was making a visit to the Waiapu river region.

Two New Zealand natives near a "reconstructed" moa.

"About 80 miles from here," said the natives, "there lives a monster bird. It is called the Moa, and it lives on the mountain side. Two lizards of great size stay near the Moa, and guard it while it sleeps.

"If a man comes near the Moa while it is asleep, the lizards wake it up. Rushing out upon the man, it tramples him to death."

"Have you ever seen this bird?" asked the missionary.

"No," they replied, "we have never seen it, but we have found some of its bones. The bones are as big as those of an ox."

What a story to hear! And who would believe it?

Even though the story sounded strange, and too hard to believe, scientists tried to learn whether such a bird lived. All their efforts to find a living Moa failed, but they did find bones.

In caves and in swamps, hundreds of bones were found. When put together, they formed the skeletons of bird-like animals.

In extra-dry caves of the South Island of New Zealand, some patches of skin were found fastened to bones by ligaments, also a number of feathers. The feathers were dark brown, tipped with white.

Long and careful study of bones located in many parts of New Zealand have proved there were, in former times, at least 20 kinds of moas. They differed a great deal in size. Some were not much larger than turkeys, but others were far bigger than ostriches. Some had a height of from 10 to 12 feet!

Think of a bird 12 feet high! With its great feet, it could surely give a kick which would knock a man senseless.

Although living moas have not been found, it is believed these birds existed in New Zealand up to a few centuries ago. With the help of bones, and with some knowledge of the skin and feathers, "specimens" of the birds have been put together for museums.

The tales told by New Zealand natives may have come from old legends handed down from father to son. If there are any moas in New Zealand today, they have been keeping out of sight!

Tomorrow: A Little Saturday Talk (Copyright, 1938)

Believe it or not, innumerable letters come to this column from young men who want to know how to propose marriage to the girl with whom they are in love. Offhand one would think that a knowledge of how to do this would come by Nature, as Dogberry thought a knowledge of reading and writing did, but apparently such is far from being the case.

Shy youths choke up on their Adam's apple when they try to ask Angelina or Mary Jane to be theirs. Glib talkers find them dumb when they reach the crucial point in the courtship. Many a long drawn-out "keeping company" gets longer because the Boy Friend can never summon up nerve enough to pop the question. And when a man had beguiled a girl to look at a new house and sandwiched his will-you-be-mine-in-between his ballyhoo about the plumbing and the heating apparatus.

I have known a widower to tell the girl he was asking to marry him that the reason he fell for her was because she reminded him so much of his first wife. And another who seemed to think that a girl would jump at the chance to marry him when he informed her that he was looking for a good cook and that her apple pie had hit the vulnerable spot in him.

Of course, women do say "yes" to his proposal if they want the man, no matter how much it wrecks their romantic dreams, but it is a bitter pill for them to swallow.

But, alas and alack, how different is real life from the movies! When and how and where do men propose? I have known a man to ask the vital question when he and

Winnebago Day School Children Construct Scenery for Operetta

Menasha — The sound of busy hammers and saws fills the air at Winnebago Day school where the children are preparing to present an operetta, "The Land of Dreams Come True." The operetta will be presented next Wednesday and Friday evenings at 7:30 in the school hall.

The operetta tells how a group of children enjoying a holiday in the woods cut magic berries which cause them to fall into deep sleep. In "The Land of Dreams Come True" the earth children meet Mother Goose and her nursery rhyme characters. The children have a difficult time believing that their wonderful adventure was only a dream.

The stage scenery will consist of several trees showing the forest and the proverbial old shoe in which lives the old woman and her large family. The shoe is the home of the mother goose characters who entertain the slumberers. The trees have been cut out, mounted and painted. The youngsters had some help preparing the standards for the trees but otherwise the work is all theirs. They have done the designing, the planning, cutting, painting and all steps of the construction.

The children also are sewing hooks on the curtains which will shut off the front of the improvised stage in the school hall. They are also sewing on the cloth backgrounds.

The proceeds of the two performances will be used for the purchase of lockers for the children of the school. The youngsters are proving strong salesmen and a third performance of the operetta may be necessary.

Others of the school are designing a program for the production. The program shows many of the familiar Mother Goose rhyme characters.

Find Both Parties Negligent in Suit

Jury Renders Verdict in $20,000 Damage Action at Oshkosh

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — A circuit court jury shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon brought in a verdict finding dual negligence in the $20,000 damage suit of Richard F. Capelle, Neenah, versus Raymond Martens, town of Neenah youth.

The verdict rendered to Judge Henry P. Hughes stated that the findings that Capelle was 30 per cent negligent and Martens, 70 per cent, in a collision Aug. 3, 1937, on Commercial street, Neenah, with Martens operating a motorcycle and Capelle riding a bicycle.

Court attaches explained that the jury action meant Capelle was awarded $717.46, or 70 per cent of the total.

Dental Profession Offers Boys Opportunity, Club Told

Neenah — Listing some of the professions in which there are opportunities for youth and others which are overcrowded, R. G. Haukoil, registrar at Marquette University, in a talk at a noon meeting of the Rotary club Thursday at the Valley Inn distinguished between a profession and a business with, "A professional man makes services his No. 1 reason for working and profit second, and a businessman, while he renders services, thinks first of profit."

Haukoil explained the purpose of vocational guidance at Marquette university and the work done by the professors in state high schools.

While the medical profession is overcrowded, the dental profession is decreasing rapidly in personnel, there being fewer dentists today than 12 years ago, the university professor said. "More students want to study medicine than any other subject," he pointed out.

Each year there are 18,000 students finishing pre-medical studies, while only 6,200 are accepted in medical schools, according to the registrar's statistics. He said that at Marquette there are 1,300 applications for the medical school and only 90 will be accepted.

Choice of Location

In the dental profession, however, the situation is entirely different and this profession offers a fine opportunity to students. Last year, each graduate of the dental school had a choice of four different locations in which to practice. "If the decrease in the personnel continues, there will be 10 per cent less dentists by 1944," he pointed out.

"The three-hour day law has opened up jobs for nurses despite the fact that 25,000 young women graduate from nursing schools yearly, and pharmacy also offers a better opportunity for young men than it did a few years ago because the new law compels pharmacists to attend college for at least three years before they can take the state examination."

The registrar offered statistics showing that the high school teaching profession is overcrowded, but he added that there are opportunities in other phases of the teaching profession, such as kindergarten, primary grades, shorthand and typing, salesmanship and exceptional courses.

"Organizing teachers unions aren't doing the profession any good, for it lowers the profession to a trade," Haukoil said.

Law Is Valuable

"Don't discourage your sons from studying law," Haukoil told the Rotarians. He added that although the law profession is overcrowded, there is plenty of opportunity of carrying over a legal knowledge into business and government. He also discussed the opportunities in engineering, insurance, banking and journalism.

Haukoil told the Rotarians that there is a field for vocational guidance for the club, and he listed three things which the club could do in promoting the legal knowledge into business and government. He also discussed the opportunities in engineering, insurance, banking and journalism.

100,000 Square Feet of Sidewalk Will be Installed

Map WPA Project to be Carried Out at Neenah This Summer

Neenah—More than 100,000 square feet of new sidewalks are expected to be installed in Neenah under this summer's city-WPA project, it was revealed today by City Clerk H. S. Zemlock.

Zemlock said that last year there were 30,000 square feet of sidewalks installed, with new walks being built on both sides of Eleventh street from Forest avenue to Hewitt street, and on one side of River street from Forest avenue to High street.

A petition already has been submitted to the clerk for installation of sidewalks on both sides of S. Lake street from Main to Western streets, a distance of 3,640 feet or 36,000 square feet of concrete. New walks also will be installed in the new Congress place plat requiring about 10,000 feet of concrete.

Welcome Petitions
The city is carrying on program in sidewalk repair and construction as was started last year, and the council welcomes petitions from property owners requesting new sidewalks where there are none, replacing of sidewalks which are low and don't correspond with the lawn and street grades and defective sidewalks.

The cost of laying sidewalks under the WPA project last year was 14 cents a square foot, and this summer the cost will not be any higher and is expected to be less, Zemlock said.

The sidewalk building program last summer was completed in the Third and Fifth wards and some work was done in the First and Second wards. Work this summer will start in the Fourth ward. Property owners, Zemlock said, have a choice of hiring a contractor to repair defective sidewalks in front of their property or wait until the city crews get into their neighborhood to do the work.

Club Will Plant 1,350 Pounds of Seed to Aid Birds

Neenah High School Group Completes Plans For Conservation Work

Neenah—More than 1,350 pounds of seed will be planted by the Neenah High school Conservation club in May in the slough and adjacent swamps, Armin Gerhardt, club advisor, reported today. The seed will be obtained from the Wild Life Nursery, Oshkosh.

The club members will plant 500 pounds of pickerel plant seed, 500 pounds of wild duck millet seed, 100 pounds of bur reed roots, and 250 pounds of wildlife upland game food mixture.

The pickerel plant, millet and bur reed roots will be planted near the slough for water fowl to feed on, while the upland game food mixture will be planted in woods in the vicinity of Neenah for pheasants.

The seed will be planted around May 10, about the time corn is planted, Gerhardt said. Besides Gerhardt, Howard Reed of the Oshkosh nursery, will supervise 20 members of the club who will do the planting. Gerhardt said that the vegetation grows nearly as tall as the average man and it not only furnishes food for wild game but improves the appearance of the landscape around swamps.

Rotarians Hear Report on Survey

Find 10 Out of 35 Cities With Community Buildings

Neenah—Results of a survey of 61 cities the size of Neenah conducted by the Neenah Rotary club upon the request of the board of park commissioners to determine community building facilities offered by other cities in the country were read at a noon meeting of the club Thursday at the Valley Inn.

The board requested the survey last winter when there was considerable agitation for a community or recreation building in a Neenah park. The board met with representatives from the three Neenah service clubs, women's clubs, city officials, patriotic organizations, parent-teachers associations and schools to determine whether there was a demand for a community building and the preferable type of building.

Earl Nicholson, chairman of the Rotary committee which conducted the survey, reported that questionnaires were sent to 61 cities and there were 35 questionnaires returned. Twenty-five of the cities which returned the questionnaires did not have community buildings while 10 of them had such buildings or similar facilities. Nicholson pointed out that the 61 cities to which the questionnaires were sent presented a cross section of the cities the size of Neenah.

Today and Tomorrow

BY WALTER LIPPMAN

A Program for the Opposition

To argue about the wisdom of "pump-priming" by government expenditures is at the moment rather beside the point.

The President's program is only in very minor degree, if at all, a pump-priming operation. For the essence of true pump-priming is to make a sudden sharp increase of government expenditures financed neither by taxes nor by the loan of real savings. Merely to spend a lot of money is not pump-priming. Unless the priming represents a true deficit of what the government spends over what it takes in, and unless the deficit is financed by inflationary money, there is no priming. Thus in 1937-38 the government has been spending a huge amount. But because it has taken in taxes, including the social security taxes, about as much as it has spent, and has done almost no net borrowing except to buy gold, there has been no pump-priming.

It is doubtful whether the new program calls for any considerable amount of pump-priming. The only important element of expenditure proposed, for W. P. A., is not really an increase of expenditure. It is merely a proposal not to decrease the rate of expenditures, not to retrench in 1938 as was originally intended when the new budget, which goes into effect this coming July, was formulated. The other part of the scheme, the proposal for P. W. A. loans and grants, would eventually look like pump-priming. But as this money cannot be spent quickly and in large forceful doses, it cannot be regarded seriously as pump-priming.

Merely Refraining From Retrenchments

The fact of the matter is that the Roosevelt Administration entered this depression with expenditures already at such a high level that it does not dare to step them up suddenly and drastically in order to prime the pump. Because Mr. Roosevelt failed to retrench in the good years, he does not really dare to prime the pump in his bad year. So he is adding no important positive stimulus through government expenditures. He is merely negatively refraining from carrying out the retrenchments that he talked about hopefully a few months ago. He is pretending to prime the pump, and rather hoping to create the impression that this is what he is doing, when in fact he is merely proposing to continue spending and taxing at the high level which he reached about the time of the 1936 elections.

If the President is not proposing to prime the pump, the opposition is not seriously proposing to refuse to spend the money he asks for. This is demonstrated by the bill just introduced by Representative Bacon of New York. It is, I think, an admirable bill and of the greatest importance but it accepts the President's estimate about the need of not retrenching on relief. Mr. Bacon, if I understand him correctly, proposes to do what the President wants, namely to spend on W. P. A. at the rate of nearly 180 millions a month rather than at the rate originally contemplated of slightly more than 100 millions a month.

And on the other item, the P. W. A. Senator Glass is objecting not to the idea of government loans and more or less concealed subsidies for more public works, he is arguing that the R. F. C. already has the necessary funds available under a bill he himself recently sponsored.

Purse-String Issue Is Now Before Congress

It is desirable to fix all this in mind if we are to get away from general issues and devote our attention to the real issues. There are two real issues before Congress. The first is whether the President is to be left with the huge personal and factional power to allocate several billion dollars. The second is whether Congress, exerting its constitutional authority over revenues, will refuse to vote more money until it has obtained concessions from the President—concessions on the Senate tax bill, on peace with the utilities, on a reform of his labor policy.

The first issue turns on the question of reducing the personal power of the President by taking away his control over immense sums of money. The second issue turns upon compelling him to revise his policies enough to make effective a recovery program based not on government expenditure but primarily on the expanded use of private credit. If the opposition in Congress will take a clear and resolute position on these two issues, it will be on firm ground. For at this moment there is no point in discussing the amount of the expenditures. The opposition should center its attention on the control of the amount and on obtaining concessions in regard to taxes, utilities, and labor.

Bacon Bill Offers Sound Spending Plan

As regards the control of the expenditures, the opposition should, I believe, take its stand on the principles of the Bacon bill. This bill provides that the money for relief shall be allocated not by the President but by a board, presumably a non-partisan board. It would be spent by the states, not by Federal appointees, and states could obtain Federal money only by putting up money of their own to prove their good faith. Under a system of this sort, the dangerous and demoralizing concentration of personal power in the President would be effectively liquidated. It would not take relief out of politics. But it would take relief out of Presidential politics, and in an election year, this is particularly desirable.

The opposition should rally around the Bacon bill and, having perfected it, should make it the issue in the coming debate. Simultaneously, the leaders of the opposition, more specifically the Garner Democrats, should make it known to the White House that they will vote none of these appropriations until the President yields on the Senate tax bill, until he gives evidence of a willingness to make peace with the utilities, and until he gives them assurances about his labor policy. They have the power, and they could readily obtain the necessary popular support for a movement of this kind, and there is nothing in such a program which deprives the President of any of his rightful authority or impairs any of his genuine reforms.

Committee Approves Additional Funds for River, Harbor Work

Post-Crescent Washington Bureau Washington — Seven Wisconsin rivers and harbors projects, as well as an upper Mississippi flood control project, may be provided for under an increase of about $34,000,000 over the original budget estimate for such projects, according to the report on the war department civil functions appropriation bill.

If the bill is passed by the house and the senate with the appropriation as recommended by the committee, the projects made possible in Wisconsin, with the probable sums to be allocated, are as follows:

Green Bay harbor, $7,000; Manitowish harbor, $115,000; Big Salmon river, $20,000; Cornucopia harbor, $11,000; Potosi harbor, $31,500; Racine harbor, $72,600; Washington Island harbor, $67,500; and continuation of canalization of the upper Mississippi river, $3,000,000.

Wisconsin congressmen, having recently succeeded in having the Bang's disease appropriation increased under the agricultural appropriations act, have apparently now prevailed in the argument that the rivers and harbors allowance should be greater.

Michigan Governor Announces Candidacy

Saginaw, Mich. — Governor Frank Murphy stepped forth as a full-fledged campaigner for re-election Thursday, without benefit of a conventional formal announcement of his candidacy.

"I don't need to tell you," he informed 600 Democrats who participated in an Eighth congressional district rally last night, "that this is no occasion for any public pronouncement."

"But there has never been any doubt that I'm willing to serve the people of Michigan so long as I can help."

The governor thereupon delivered himself of a campaign speech that expressed confidence in the national administration, predicted "brighter times" for industry and government in Michigan and assailed his Republican foes, former Governor Frank D. Fitzgerald and Harry S. Toy.

District Boy Scouts to Hold Merit Badge Show

Between eight and 10 merchants will open their windows to boy scout displays in the Appleton district merit badge show which is tentatively set for next Tuesday, Walter Dixon, scout executive, said today.

Displays of handicraft, insect life, electricity, signaling, camping equipment, woodwork, archery, aviation, art and other scout activities will be shown. Six troops of the district are expected to take part.
